WADE STEVENS TOLD NEGRO WILKES THAT WOMEN WERE ALONE

Suspected Son in McDonough Road Mystery Tells Police He Talked With Former "Hand" Tuesday P. M.

POLICE HAVE SPREAD NET FOR NEGRO, THEREFORE

They Seek Also Another Negro Who Worked There Formerly–Wade Stevens Gave Self Up in Chattanooga

By the story told by Wade Stevens, Walter Wilkes, a negro, is the man to whom the suspicion of the law is directed just now in its search for the murder of Mrs. Sarah C. Stevens and her adopted daughter Nellie in their home on McDonough road last Tuesday night.

The son of the murdered woman, himself held under a DeKalb county warrant, declares that he talked with the negro Wilkes Tuesday night in town and told Wilkes that his father, William Stevens, had gone to the reunion in Chattanooga and that he himself was going there.

Then Mrs. Stevens and Miss Nellie will be there by themselves tonight." Wade said the negro remarked inquiringly; to which he, Wade, answered "yes."

Wade said that the negro told him that he, the negro, was going out to the Stevens' place and get his old job back.

In addition to this very important piece of information, which not yet has been confirmed, however, Wade has told the officers that last Sunday morning he encountered the negro, Walter Wilkes on the road about a mile from the Stevens place, and that he gave the negro a "lift" in the buggy to town.

This amended the information given to the police by neighbors and William Stevens, that the negro Wilkes had not been seen around the place since he quit work there as a handy man about three weeks before the tragedy.

Detectives now are looking for Wilkes. They have their net spread also for Ernest Maynard another negro, a halfbreed, who worked at the Stevens place before Wilkes began work there some three months ago.

WADE STEVENS DETAILS OWN ACTS.

In a cell at police station Friday morning Wade Stevens gave to The Journal a complete account of his movements since he left his home on the East McDonough road, where his mother and adopted sister were incinerated last Tuesday night.

The boy gave himself up at police headquarters in Chattanooga as soon as he learned he was wanted, it has developed.

According to Wade, he left his home at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday morning and has not been back since. Of nearly every hour of the time from 11 o'clock Tuesday morning until he was caught by Detective John Black in Chattanooga Thursday morning Wade gives a straightforward account and says that he can prove his story by the testimony of others.

Detectives believe that he is telling the truth, and if it is, he was not at home about 6 o'clock Tuesday afternoon—the time when H. G. Self, a neighbor of the Stevens, says he saw a man whom he supposed to be Wade around the Stevens home.

This leads to the inference that Wade is either not telling the truth or that some man, not yet identified, was at the Stevens home, only a short time before the two women were killed and the Stevens home burned down.

NEIGHBORS SAW SOMEONE.

In his testimony at the coroner's inquest Wednesday afternoon, Self declared that he was walking along the road, which is about fifty yards from the Stevens house, that he saw a man in blue overalls turning in the corner of the Stevens house and so down toward the barn, and that he thought the man was Wade Stevens, but that he was not sure. He did not say whether the man he saw was white or black.

When Nellie Stevens came to the Self home about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, as Mrs. Self testified, and gave Mrs. Self a cardboard box with some clothes in it, she did not say whether Wade was at home then or not, according to Mrs. Self.

The clothes in the box were a checked suit and a checked cap. Nellie Stevens told Mrs. Self that Wade wanted to go home, and that her mother had sent the clothes over in order that Wade might not get them when he left. This was the statement of Mrs. Self at the inquest.

Wade Stevens and "Red" Merchant are held on DeKalb county warrants charging them with murder. Detectives say that practically all suspicion against the boys has been lifted, but that these warrants, which were sworn out following the verdict of the coroner's jury Wednesday afternoon, will be used to hold them. Wade Stevens' father, William Stevens, has retained Harry Etheridge, of the law firm of Etheridge & Etheridge, to represent the boy's interests.

The story of Wade Stevens and that of "Red" Merchant, his companion on the trip to Chattooga, agree in every particular. Each is in a separate cell at police headquarters, and each has been questioned by a Journal reporter.

WADE STEVENS' STORY.

"On Monday morning," began Wade Stevens, "I had cut some oats and left them lying out in the field. About 8 o'clock Tuesday morning it was raining a little and mamma told me to gather the oats and put them in the barn.

"I told her they would get musty if I did that, but she told me to go ahead and do it. She told me to do it or leave home right then. I left fifteen

Conley's Confession Is Given In Full

ON Saturday, April 26, 1913, when I came back to the pencil factory with Mr. Frank I waited for him downstairs like he told me, and when he whistled for me I went upstairs and he asked me if I wanted to make some money right quick, and I told him, yes, sir, and he told me that he had picked up a girl back there and had let her fall and that her head hit against something—he didn't know what it was—and for me to move her and I hollered and told him the girl was dead.

"And he told me to pick her up and bring her to the elevator, and I told him I didn't have nothing to pick her up with, and he told me to go and look by the cotton box there and get a piece of cloth and I got a big wide piece of cloth and come back there to the men's toilet, where she was, and tied her, and I taken her and brought her up there to a little dressing room, carrying her on my right shoulder, and she got too heavy for me and she slipped off my shoulder and fell on the floor right there at the dressing room and I hollered for Mr. Frank to come there and help me; that she was too heavy for me, and Mr. Frank come down there and told me to 'pick her up, dam fool,' and he run down there to me and he was excited, and he picked her up by the feet. Her feet and head were sticking out of the cloth, and by him being so nervous he let her feet fall, and then he brought her up to the elevator, Mr. Frank carrying her by the feet and me by the shoulder, and we brought her to the elevator, and then Mr. Frank says, 'Wait, let me get the key,' and he went into the office and come back and unlocked the elevator door and started the elevator down.

Frank Ran the Elevator.

"Mr. Frank turnd it on himself, and we went on down to the basement and Mr. Frank helped me take it off the elevator and he told me to take it back there to the sawdust pile and I picked it up and put it on my shoulder again, and Mr. Frank he went up the ladder and watched the trapdoor to see if anybody was coming, and I taken her back there and taken the cloth from around her and taken her hat and shoes which I picked up upstairs right where her body was lying and brought them down and untied the cloth and brought them back and throwed them on the trashpile in front of the furnace and Mr. Frank was standing at the trapdoor.

"He didn't tell me where to put the thing. I laid her body down with her head toward the levator, lying on her stomach and the left side of her face was on the ground the right side of her body was up and both arms were laying down with her body by the side of her body. Mr. Frank joined me back of the elevator and he stepped on the elevator when it got to where he was, and he said, 'Gee, that was a tiresome job,' and I told him his job was not as tiresome as mine was, because I had to run it all the way from where she was lying to the dressing room and in the basement from the elevator to where I left her.

Got in the Wardrobe.

"Then Mr. Frank hops off the elevator before it gets even with the second floor and he makes a stumble and he hits the floor and catches with both hands and he went around to the sink to wash his hands and I went and cut off the motor and I stood and waited for Mr. Frank to come from around there washing his hands and then we went on into the office and Mr. Frank, he couldn't hardly keeep still. He was all the time moving about from one office to the other. Then he come back into the stenographer's office and come back and told me, 'Here come Emma Clark and Corinthia Hall,' I understood him to say and he come back and told me to come here and he opened the wardrobe and told me to get in there, and I was so slow about going he told me to hurry up, damn it, and Mr. Frank, whoever that was come into the office, they didn't stay so very long till Mr. Frank had gone about seven or eight minutes, and I was still in the wardrobe and he never had come to let me out, and Mr. Frank come back and I said: 'Goodness alive, you kept me in there a mighty long time,' and he said: 'Yes, I see I did; you are sweated.' And then me and Mr. Frank sat down in a chair. Mr. Frank then took out a cigarette and he give me the box and asked me did I want to smoke, and I told him, 'Yes, sir,' and I taken the box and taken out a cigarette and he handed me a box of matches and I handed him the cigarette box and he told me that was all right I could keep that. Mr. Frank then asked me to write a few lines on that paper, a white scratch pad he had there and he told me what to put on there and I asked him what he was going to do with it and he told me to just go ahead and write, and then after I got through writing Mr. Frank looked at it and said it was all right, and Mr. Frank looked up at the top of the house and said,'Why should I hang? I have wealthy people in Brooklyn,' and I asked him what about me and he told me that was all right about me, for me to keep my mouth shut and he would make everything all right.

Handed Him Roll of Bills

And then I asked him where was the money he said he was going to give me, and Mr. Frank said, 'Here is $200,' and he handed me a big roll of greenback money and I didn't count it. I stood there a little while looking at it in my hand and I told Mr. Frank not to take out another dollar for that watch man I owed, and he said he wouldn't—and the rest is just like I told it before. The reason I have not told this before is I thought Mr. Frank would get out and help me out, but it seems that he is not going to get out, and I have decided to tell the whole truth about the matter.

"When I was looking at the money in my hand, Mr. Frank said: 'Let me have that and I will make it all right with you Monday if I live and nothing happens.' And he took the money back and I asked him if that was the way he done, and he said he would give it back Monday.

JAMES CONLEY."

AVIATOR FLIES OVER LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN

Johnny Green, Flying Before Veterans, Performs Feat Others Have Failed At

(By Associated Press.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 30.—One of the features of the closing day of the Confederate reunion was the flight over Lookout mountain by Johnny Green in his Curtiss bi-plane, the first successful flight over the countain ever made.

Several other aviators have attempted the feat but failed on account of treacherous wind currents encountered. Green rose to a height of 6,000 feet, 700 feet above any of his previous records. He was in the air 41 minutes. He encountered in the flight over the mountain and Maccasin bend valley a wind of thirty-mile velocity.

ORATOR FROM SOUTH EULOGIZES DEAD ON GETTYSBURG FIELD

Congressman J. Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, the First Southerner to Deliver Address at Gettysburg

(By Associated Press.)

GETTYSBURG, Pa. May 30.—Standing on historic Gettysburg battlefield and bringing "a message of a reunited country," Representative Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, today paid eloquent tribute to the heroism of the men who wore the Blue and the Gray. His was the first address ever delivered by a southerner at Gettysburg Memorial day exercises.

"Our colonial fathers from north, south and east and west," Mr. Heflin said, "fought together when they brought this republic into being, defended it together in the war of 1812, and triumphed together when they carried the stars and stripes into the heritage of the Montezumas. The final and crucial test of the republic's strength and durability was the combat on the field of battle in the war between the states."

He added that the question of the right of the state to secede and the right of the union to prevent it, the status of rights and relationship between state and federal government, "could not be determined in the councils of peace; it had to be settled by the arbitrament of the sword."

SPEECH IN FULL.

Congressman Heflin's speech in full follows:

"My Countrymen:

"It was an important day when our fathers for conscience sake determined to leave the mother country. It was a kindly light that led them from the persecution and tyranny of the old world to the pleasing possibilities of the new. Their dogged determination to better their condition—their love of religious liberty and their willingness to do and dare for the right was splendid material with which to build a republic.

"They seemed to hear the voice of one crying in this wilderness of the west, this is the land and here the opportunity for building a genuine republic—prepare ye the way. The hardships and suffering that they endured, their heroic deeds and daring exploits testify how well and how faithfully they prepared the way.

"When we look back over the path that our liberty has come, we do not see her winding through labyrinthian shades of ease and luxury, but we behold her coming up through human sacrifice and heroic suffering, through death to life. King rule died in the thirteen colonies and this republic of the west was born. The first sound that fell upon its infant ears was that of the soldier tread, the roar of musketry and the thunders of artillery.

"Our colonial fathers from north and south and east and west fought together when they brought the republic into being. They defended it together in the war of 1812; they triumphed together under General Taylor when they

Goux, in the French Peugeot, was second. Twenty-three cars were still running at this distance.

Another foreign car had to drop out when Grant's Isotta broke a gasoline feed pipe.

B. Endicott's Case also was forced out of the race by a broken crank shaft.

Burman made his first stop for oil and gasoline and Goux took the lead at 140 miles.

DePalma relieved Bragg at the wheel of a Mercer at 145 miles.

Harry Endicott's Nyberg went out on the back stretch in its forty-fourth lap. It was far behind the leaders.

Burman will get back on the track as soon as he tests his new carburator, which was put in at the pit.

J. Nikrents' Case car went out on the sixty-seventh lap with a slipping clutch.

GRUESOME PART PLAYED BY HIM ILLUSTRATED

In Presence of Detectives, Factory Officials and Newspaper Men, the Negro Goes Over Every Point of His Statement From the Time Frank Is Alleged to Have Directed Him to the Metal Room Until Girl's Body Was Left in the Basement

"MR. FRANK AND HIS FRIENDS HAVE FORSAKEN ME AND I DECIDED TO TELL THE WHOLE TRUTH," HE DECLARES

He Says His Statement Is Voluntary, That He Has Not Been Browbeaten Nor Mistreated by the Detectives–Full Story of His Confession to Being an Accessory After the Fact and His Visit to the Pencil Factory–Frank Makes No Comment

Following his full confession of his part in the mysterious murder of Mary Phagan, the pretty fourteen-year-old factory girl, James Conley, the negro sweeper, was Friday afternoon taken to the National Pencil factory on South Forsyth street and there in the presence of a half dozen detectives, several newspaper men and the factory officials illustrated in detail his own and Superintendent Leo M. Frank's movements after he was called upstairs to aid in removing the dead girl's body.

Conley led the officers back to the extreme rear of the metal room on the second floor and into a little alleyway off to the left where he said he found the girl's dead body after Frank let him in. He lay down on his stomach with hands stretched by his side to show how the body was found. He said a cord was about the girl's neck and was stretched on the floor at right angles to the body.

He said that after he saw the body he went back to where Frank was standing at the head of the stairs, he got a big piece of crocus bagging; that he took this bagging back and tied the girl's body up in it much after the fashion a washerwoman ties up her soiled clothes; that he then took the body on his right shoulder and started up toward the elevator in the front (Frank remaining at the head of the stairs and just outside the double doors to the metal room, all the while.)

Conley declared that when he had walked half way up the room the body slipped off his shoulder to the floor. (This was the place where the bloodspots were found and where it has hitherto been believed the girl was murdered.)

FRANK HELPED HIM CARRY HER.

"I then went to Mr. Frank," said the negro, "and told him the girl was too heavy for me to carry alone. Mr. Frank then left his position and walked back with me. He took hold of the foot end of the bundle and I the head. We carried her then to the elevator and put her down on the floor while Mr. Frank went into the office to get the key to the elevator switch. On the way to the elevator Mr. Frank let the feet fall. (The negro indicated the spot where this occurred.) The elevator door was open and the bars were raised so that we did not have to stoop. We put the body on the elevator with the feet toward the front. I stood at the head and Mr. Frank, who ran the elevator down, stood with one of his feet over one of the girl's legs which stuck out.

"When we reached the basement Mr. Frank gathered up the feet and me the head. We carried the body about twenty feet to the gas light and Mr. Frank dropped his end. He told me to pick it up and carry it back to the far end of the basement. I did so and placed it where the dust in the spot where it was found by Newt Lee, the night watchman.

FOUND HAT AND SHOE.

"I then removed the crocus bagging from around the body and found the hat, one shoe and a piece of ribbon that I rolled up. I took these along with the bagging in my hand and called to Mr. Frank, who had climbed up the ladder to the cubby hole on the next landing and asked im what I must do with them. He told me to throw on the trash pile just in front of the boiler and just beside where I was standing at the time. I did as he directed. He then told me to run the elevator on up.

"When the elevator reached the landing where Mr. Frank was standing awaiting it h stepped on almost before it stopped and fell heavily against me, grabbing me about the shoulders. When we reached the second floor—the office—the elevator stopped about a foot below the floor, and Mr. Frank was so excited he stubled out, falling on his knees. (The negro illustrated how Frank fell).

"After he got up he took me around the shoulders and led me straight into the inner office, closing all doors behind us. He told me to sit down at this desk (indicating a desk just back of the chair to Frank's own desk, the chairs of each desk almosttouching their backs.)

"Mr. Frank sat down in his swivel chair and turned and twisted for a moment, turning first white and then red, and sort of gasping as he talked. We heard footsteps outside and Mr. Frank hurried me into this wardrobe (indicating the wardrobe and climbing into one side of it). Mr. Frank closed the door and remarked: 'There comes Emma Clark and Corinthia Hall. Be right still. I will be back in a minute.' He went outside and I heard him talking to some one, the voice sounding like that of a woman. I heard the strange voice say: 'Are you all alone' and Mr. Frank said: 'Yes.'

"A minute or two later I heard the footsteps going out of the office and Mr. Frank came back, closing the office doors behind him. He then told me to come out of the wardrobe and motioned to me to sit back down in the chair behind his.

SWAYED LIKE HE WAS SICK.

"For a minute or two he clasped his hands and swayed back in his chair as if he was sick. Then he turned to me and told me to write on a pencil pad which was lying on the desk beside me. He dictated and I wrote: 'That long, tall black negro did this by himself.'

"Then he pushed his hands through his hair and mumbled: 'Why should I hang when I have got rich folks in Brooklyn, New York. Then he took a yellow pad out of his desk. The negro indicated the exact place on the right hand of the desk where he said the yellow order pad was taken from by Frank.)

"He handed me this pad and then told me to write another note. He dictated this note also and as far as I can it was like this (and the negro wrote the following on a pad without prompting:

"Dear mother: I long tall black negro did this by himself he told me if I would lay down he would love me play like the night watchman did this boy himself.'

"Mr. Frank was just twisting in his chair all the time, and just rubbing his hands together. I asked him why he wanted to put that about the night watchman in the note, and he said 'that's all right, I'll fix that. I am going to send these notes to my mother, who is rich, and she'll send you something.' The he repeated: 'Why should I hang; my people are rich" and I said, that's all right, Mr. Frank, but what's going to become of me; ain't you going to do anything for me for helping you carry the body down?' Mr. Frank said: 'Yes, don't you worry.' He then took the notes from my hand and put them on his desk, after which he placed the inkstand on top of them. (The negro illustrated by picking up the inkstand on Frank's desk and placing it on the notes he had just written.)

"Then Mr. Frank turned around in his chair, facing me and sorter laughed. After which he got red in the face, then white, then red again. He seemed very much excited."

CONFESSION VOLUNTARY.

At this point in his narrative Conley interrupted by Detective Chief Lanford and asked to state in the presence of all those standing around him if he had made his confession of his own free will.

"Yes, sir,' replied the negro, 'I am telling this because I want to tell it. I have been upholding Mr. Frank because he told me that Saturday that he would see me Monday if he lived and make it all right with me.'

"Have you been abused or threatened by the officers into making this confession?" inquired Chief Lanford.

"No, sir," said the negro; 'the officers have treated me kindly."

"Why did you change your first statement?" interrogated Chief Beavers.

"Because I was upholding Mr. Frank until I saw the newspapers in the chief's office and learned that everybody at the factory was trying to put the blame on me; then I decided to tell the whole truth."

One of the officers asked Conley if Frank had not given hi mmone money while he was sitting in the office after he wrote the notes, and the negro replied:

TOOK MONEY BACK.

"Yes, sir; he handed me a roll of bills and said it was $200. I took it in my hand and in a little while he told me to let him see it. I thought he wanted to count the money, but he put it in his pocket and told me he would see me Monday if he lived. He had given me a cigarette box in which there was $2.50, and after he took back the

GOV. BROWN'S SPEECH ON STRIKE IS CIRCULATED

Address in Defense of His Attitude Being Mailed Out in Pamphlet Form

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 30.—Governor Joseph M. Brown's speech of October 29, 1912, at Atlanta, in defense of his attitude with reference to the Georgia railroad strike and the use of the state militia, is being widely circulated in pamphlet form.

Senators, representatives, newspapers and persons in public life have received copies of the speech by mail from Atlanta. The envelope in which the pamphlet was mailed bears no name or address, and only the postmark shows its place of origin.

The inside cover of the pamphlet contains a foreword, in which the members of Governor Brown's military staff are credited with its publication and distribution, as follows:

"The speech of Governor Brown herein printed was delivered by him at Atlanta, Ga., October 29, 1912, and was published in part of Georgia papers several days later.

"The position taken attracted such widespread attention that requests for copies of the speech came from nine states other than Georgia, besides which there were a multitude of like requests from within the state of Georgia.

"Under these conditions, members of Governor Brown's staff and other prominent gentlemen have asked consent to publish the speech in its entirety. The request the governor has accorded to. The change in the speech as delivered and as published consists in the quotation in full of sections of the code of Georgia and of the proposed proclamation, to which mere allusions were made in the speech as delivered the latter being extemporaneous inasmuch as Governor Brown did not know until members of his staff came to escort him that he would be expected to make any formal remarks."

STEEL WORKER IS KILLED TRYING TO HELP WOMAN

CLARKESVILLE, Ga., May 30.—Lawrence "Bud" Crone is under charges of murder in Habersham county jail Friday and Katie Alcear is held as a material witness against him as the result of an affray at Tallulah Falls lodge Thursday in which Tom Bladon, a structural steels worker of Seluda, S. C., was shot to death.

Crone is said to have fired on Bladon five times, killing him instantly, when the latter remonstrated with him for beating the woman. The first shot entered Bladon's head and as he lay prostrate Crone, it is asserted, stood over him and pumped bullets into his body.

According to the woman, who was taken to Clarkesville Thursday night by Sheriff McCollom, Crone had threatened to kill her and had struck her several times with a club. She said she had left his shack and was running up the railroad track near the lodge when Bladon approached Crone to ascertain the cause of the trouble. The woman said she did not see the shooting, but heard the shots distinctly.

Crone was hurried out of Tallulah Falls by Deputy Sheriff England for fear of violence among the construction men and friends of Bladon.

ORDER OF COURT CLOSES BIG ROME LOCKER CLUB

Test Case May Be Carried to Court of Appeals for Final Settlement

ROME, Ga., May 30.—A decision of far-reaching importance was made here yesterday by Judge Moses Wright when he granted a permanent injunction restraining the Hill City club from operating its locker. The litigation was instituted by C. L. Wilkerson, an officer of the Rome Law Enforcement league. He was represented by Attorney Seaborn and Graham Wright.

It is expected that the case will be carried to the court of appeals for final settlement. The club rooms have been closed, and the stock of liquors confiscated.

In ruling upon the application for injunction, Judge Wright held that the club was organized solely for the purpose of dispensing liquors, that there were no social or literary features connected with it, no initiation fees or dues, and that the managers received compensation according to the amount of liquor consumed by the members. Judge Wright held that the club was clearly a subterfuge to evade the law, and that the law looks with disfavor upon a scheme or device to cover an illegal sale.

If the decision of Judge Wright is upheld by the court of appeals, local prohibitionists say it will establish a precedent that will close every locker club in Georgia, as the Hill City club has operated upon exactly the same lines as the average locker club in Georgia.

PEACE AT LAST REIGNS OVER ALLIES AND TURKS

Preliminary Treaty Signed by Balkan Allies and Turkey on U. S. Memorial Day

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 30.—The preliminary treaty of peace was signed at St. James palace today by the delegates of all the Balkan allies and of Turkey. Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, presided at the meeting.

Dr. S. Daneff, the Bulgarian peace delegate, in the course of an interview after the signing of the preliminary treaty of peace, said:

"I am rejoiced. It means not only that continued peace but general peace and Europe is saved from one of the most thorny problems of the age.

"We owe a deep debt of gratitude to Sir Edward Grey, whose enduring and untiring mastery in treating diplomatic problems has brought about peace much sooner than some of us had expected."

The first meeting of the peace conference has been fixed for Monday, June 2.

MAYOR WANTS TO BUY THE NEW CREMATORY

But He Insists That Destructor Company Should Reduce the Price for Cash

Mayor Woodward is willing to buy the new crematory and pay the whole purchase price this year, as council members suggest, but he thinks the destructor company ought to reduce the price in consideration of getting cash.

He said Friday morning:

"Council has got the city in a hole. I didn't help them put the city in hole. I tried my best to keep the city out of a hole. But now that it's in, I have no desire to keep it there. I want us all to get together and pull the city out of a hole. I think if we go about it in the right way we can buy the plant for less than $276,000. The company, when I contended that this price was too high, answered with the proposition that it will be taking a big risk by selling the plant to the city on credit with no protection in case the city should fail to make future payments. Now, if the city pays the whole price this year, that proposition no longer holds good. In other words, if we pay cash for the plant we ought to get it cheaper than if we bought it on credit.

SHOULD REDUCE OVER $35,000.

"The company is said to have offered $35,000 to Atlanta banks to finance the city's so-called 'moral obligation.' Hence it ought to knock off at least that amount if we pay cash. In fact, it ought to knock off more. It built a plant in Milwaukee with 50 tons more capacity than our plant, and charged that only $66,000 less. We ought to get this plant on the same basis that Milwaukee got theirs."

The finance committee of council met at 9 o'clock Friday morning and the crematory was the first matter it took up. Councilman Humphrey, chairman of the committee, agrees with other council members that the city must buy the plant, and if necessary must raise the whole amount, $276,000, this year.

ARRANGE WHOLE PAYMENT.

"What I would like to do, and I think it can be done," he said, "is to put $276,000 in the sheet, but make a contract so that we won't have to pay the whole amount at once. In other words, let the company operate the plant twelve months to show that it will come up to its guarantees, and mean while let the city hold back a certain amount, say $75,000. Then if the plant is satisfactory, the city will pay this amount. But in the meantime, of course, the money will be in the sheet, so that it will be just the same as a cash purchase."

A majority of council members are practically already agreed that the city, if necessary, must stop all special work in order to raise enough to pay the whole price of the crematory this year, as under the supreme court's decision this is the only legal way out of what Mayor Woodward calls "the hole the city has got into."

The finance committee postponed action on the crematory until Friday afternoon on account of the absence of City Attorney Mayson, who was engaged in the trial of a case Friday morning and could not leave court. The committee will first get his advice as to just what can be done under the supreme court's decision, and will be able to meet with the committee at 2:30 Friday afternoon, which is the hour for the committee to reassemble.

ATLANTA BOY SCOUTS TO BE GUESTS AT DECATUR

DeKalb County Crack Troop Will Entertain Lavishly Next Tuesday

The Decatur troop Boy Scouts of America are planning to entertain the Scouts of Atlanta on next Tuesday at their club rooms in Decatur.

The Decatur troop now has on its rolls 123 members, which they believe is the largest scout organization in the state of Georgia and possibly in the whole south.

At a recent track meet held by the scouts of Atlanta and vicinity, under the direction of Scout Master E. G. Everett, of Troop No. 1 Atlanta, the Decatur troop won first place and carried off both trophies offered by scoutmasters of Atlanta. These trophies were a handsome leather wall banner which becomes the property of the troop winning it and a mahogany and brass shield which is held for one year by the troop coming first in the annual field and track meet. This last trophy will be presented to the Decatur troop on Tuesday, if it arrives from the manufacturer.

The scout master of the Decatur troop is Mr. Scott Candler. Assistant Scout Master Mr. Albert Kellogg, adjutant, Mr. George Phillips. Hugh Bodenhammer is troop president. All the members of this troop are requested to meet at their club rooms Saturday night at 7:30 to complete their arrangements for next Tuesday.

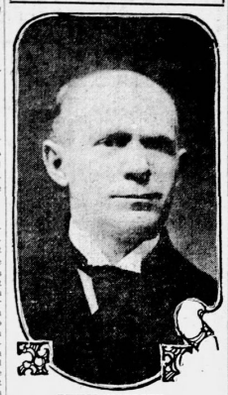
Yiddish Evangelist



PHILIP SIDERSKY.

On Thursday evening at the Second Baptist church Philip Sidersky, the Yiddish evangelist of Baltimore, delivered an illustrated address with stereopticon views on "Israel Among the Nations."

Mr. Sidersky pointed out some prophesies, types and predictions about Christ from the old Testament and also gave a brief description of the Jewish passover service, as it is being observed by the Jews all over the world today, and its relation to Christ. He also brought out some New Testament scriptures and explained their fulfillment of Christ in the Old Testament.

On Friday night Mr. Sidersky is to deliver his last illustrated address, with stereopticon views, at the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Sidersky, who has spoken before the Presbyterian assembly, has delivered his illustrated addresses while in Atlanta at the First Baptist church and Central Presbyterian church.

PRISON REFORM ECONOMY DESCRIBED BY WELTNER

Prison Assn. Secy. Says Criticism Is of Methods, Not System

The economic phase of prison reform is set before the public in a statement just issued by Secretary Philip Weltner, of the Prison Association of Georgia, in which he shows that in this state the task of building roads and the task of building men is one and the same.

The Prison Association of Georgia is not opposed, he says, to working convicts on the road; it is simply opposed to the way in which they are worked now. If the system is improved, he says, the first obvious result to the state will be the building of better roads. Says Mr. Weltner in part:

"It requires intelligence of a high order to direct road work. It requires intelligence of a high order to direct men into paths of rectitude. But intelligence will not now do service in Georgia's penal system, because it will not undertake the responsibility of a position whose main function is to guard and when necessary, to bully human beings. An efficient highway engineer would not accept the position of road boss for love or money, because it would at times force him to play the role of a brute. The present system tends to discourage the exercise of humanity by those in authority. There are, of course, exceptions.

"If such a condition of affairs is inimical to ordinary business, the same rule would apply to the business of making roads. What we must do in Georgia is to reverse this condition of affairs."

GEORGIA PAYS $662,857 TRIBUTE TO BOOK TRUST

So Declares H. V. Casey, Answering Mr. McCrary's Problem in Percentage

Atlanta, Ga., May 30, 1913.

Editor The Journal: I submit herewith the following solution of Mr. C. R. McCrory's percentage problem, published in The Journal of the 29th.

Based upon these books costing the people of Georgia $1.75 and the people of Ontario 59c, when Georgia pays $1,000,000 for books, Ontario would buy the identical same books for $337,142.86, the people of Georgia paying tribute to the "book trust" to the tune of $662,857.14.

Mr. McCrory states the problem incorrectly when he says that Georgia pays 244 per cent more than the good folks of Ontario, the excess charge is 196.61 per cent plus, based upon these same figures of $1.75 and 59c respectively.

Briefly stated, for every dollar that Georgia pays the "book trust" Ontario gets better books for 34 cents. Comment is obviously unnecessary.

Yours truly,

H. V. CASEY.

MONDAY NIGHT PROGRAM OF TECH IS CANCELED

On account of the fact that William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, has been compelled to cancel his lecture engagement, there will be no quarter-centennial gathering of Tech students and patrons Monday night at the Grand opera house. Since Mr. Bryan is unable to come and make the address on this occasion, it has been called off.

All the other regular announced features of the quarter-centennial and commencement program will take place, however, just as they have been announced previously.

The first of these will be the Henry W. Grady Literary society debate Friday evening of next week, at the Tech Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

OCEAN FREIGHT RECORD IS BROKEN BY "LENAPE"

James T. Scott, commercial agent of the Clyde line, reports that their new steamer, Lenape," has made a new record on freight from the east. Freight leaving on the Lenape from New York Tuesday afternoon arrived Friday morning at 6 o'clock and was delivered Friday morning. While it was the third morning out of New York, this freight was actually in transit only two and a half days, which is remarkable time and a record that will stand for some time.

HYGEIA HOTEL BURNS AT CITRONELLE, ALA.

(By Associated Press.)

MOBILE, Ala., May 30.—The Hygeia hotel at Citronelle, Ala., this county, one of the oldest tourist resorts in this section and noted throughout the country, was totally destroyed by fire last night. All but three of the cottages operated in connection with the hotel were also burned.

The hotel was being put in readiness for the summer season, and was vacant excepting for employes. The total loss is estimated at upwards of $50,000.

THEATERS

(Criticisms of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements.)

ATLANTA—"St. Elmo."
FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
BIJOU—Vaudeville and pictures.

The bill at the Forsyth this week is headed by Maggie Cline, who was brought here as a special feature. Miss Cline is the oldest artist in the vaudeville profession, and it is something of an experience to witness one of her performances. There are thousands who can lay claim to that in Atlanta.

The bill as a whole is a perfectly good entertainment. There are some clever people in their respective lines, and there is nothing that is conflicting in the slightest. There is good comedy, good music and real novelty.

For the coming week the headline feature will be Lillian Shaw, known and liked here. She is an entertainer and she is always original. Some of the best songs that have been heard on a local stage can be credited to the clever little woman.

"Resurrection," the Tolstoy Russian drama, with Blanche Walsh in the role of Maslova, is drawing crowds to the Grand opera house. It opened Thursday to small audiences, but the beauty and interest of the pictures caused gossip that brought a big hourse Friday. The play is in four reels, was produced after long months of work, and is one of the most elaborate and dramatic ever shown in Atlanta. It is the first appearance of Blanche Walsh in the picture dramas, and those who saw her in the original production of "Resurrection" some seasons ago say her work has lost nothing through the absence of the spoken word.

Miss Billy Long and her associates will bid good-by to Atlanta Saturday night when they give their final performance of "St. Elmo," which has been declared the favorite of the patrons of the new theater. The company will be transferred from Atlanta to Nashville, opening Monday night at the Orpheum theater there in "The Girl from Out Yonder."

No stock company ever in Atlanta has won more friends and made a more favorable impression than Miss Long's company. They have been here six weeks and during that time have produced some fine artistic successes. But the financial results were not sufficiently profitable to cause the company to remain here, and hence the management has decided to go to Nashville. The company is sure to score a big success there as no opposition will be encountered.

A matinee will be given Saturday afternoon at which all seats will be 25 cents. The last performance will be Saturday night.

The popularity of musical comedy is being demonstrated this week at the Bijou, where "The District Leader" is drawing large and appreciative audiences. Atlanta has taken to this form of amusement that is being offered at the Bijou at bargain prices. "The District Leader" is a musical comedy with a good plot and plenty of good singing and dancing. The entertainment lasts for nearly one hour and a half. The remaining performances doubtless will draw good crowds to the popular theater. Next week the attraction will be one of the most successful musical tabloids that will visit Atlanta, it is to be Max Spiegel's musical comedy, "The College Girls." The company is made up mainly of attractive girls who wear stunning costumes.

minutes later. That was about 8 o'clock Tuesday morning.

"I didn't have any money, so I walked all the way to town. It's about seven miles. I got to town about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and met 'Red' Merchant at the Union depot. We stayed down there talking about an hour. Then 'Red' caught his street car and went home to East Atlanta.

"I loafed about town by myself from about 1 o'clock till 3 o'clock. Sometime between 1 o'clock and 3 o'clock I met a boy named Will Branwell and talked to him for about forty-five minutes near Five Points. At 3 I met Merchant again at the Union depot. We were together all the afternoon, until at 6 o'clock we met C. B. McWilliams, the Hammond boy and the Harmon boy.

GAVE HIMSELF UP.

"At 8 o'clock Tuesday night Red Merchant and I went to the Union depot and caught a train going to Chattanooga at 8:30 o'clock. It was No. 4 on the W. and A. road. 'Red' Merchant and I got on top of the Pullman cars and rode that way all the way to Chattanooga. We were not disturbed coming. We got to Chattanooga at 1:00 o'clock Wednesday morning.

"We loafed around the Chattanooga depot until daylight. Besides 'Red' and myself, there was a newsbutch on the W. and A. running out of Nashville at the depot then. His name was Wright. There was also the night cashier at the restaurant at the depot, a fellow named Parker. Both of them were friends of 'Red.'

"At 8 o'clock we strolled up on Roswell avenue, where my half-brother, Ed Stevens, boards. I was ashamed to go in.

"We went on down the street again and loafed around some more until 11 o'clock, when I got hold of a newspaper. I there saw where my mother and adopted sister, Nellie, had been murdered. It was the first I knew anything about it and it almost knocked me over.

"Of course, I saw all that in the paper about me being suspicious, so I went straight down to the police station and gave myself up. 'Red' stayed up town till about 11 o'clock when they went up there and got him.

"I told Detective Black I wanted to come back to Atlanta just as soon as I went to the station house, and I'm glad I'm here."

MR. STEVENS HIDS IT GOOD-BY.

As for automobile carrying William Stevens, the veteran head of the ruined household, sped down the hill on the McDonough road, returning to the city Thursday afternoon, his old mansion looked back at the naked chimney pointing skyward like a monument, and saw it probably for the last time.

He is not going back, he says. He will not return to the spot where occurred the death of his wife and daughter, and the destruction of his home, resulting in the arrest of his only boy, Wade.

The horses, the mules, the other live stock about the place, Mr. Stevens will sell as soon as he can find a taker. He will get neighbors to look after the crops, and he will make no effort to rebuild the farm house set among the grove of oak trees.

Four days spent about the place Thursday was enough for the old man, who already has passed his seventy-second birthday. He seemingly stunned and dazed as he wandered among the ashes and about the scorched outhouses. They showed him were the bodies of his wife and daughter had been found, two burned skeletons, lying near the beds.

The old man looked but once, and turned away. It was all that he cared to see of the ashes of the house and the awful end some one had found. The mules, too, I want to sell. If some of you fellows will harvest those crops I will let it all right for you."

As for me," he said, as the automobile rocked from side to side on its way to town, "I've done with that place. I'm going to the Atlantonoa to live with my boy Ed. The place out there will go to Wade when he's of age. The house wasn't worth anything and it was insured.

Mr. Stevens is staying with his brother-in-law, G. B. Golden, 1 Myrtle avenue, while in Atlanta. He went to the M. Patterson's funeral parlors Friday morning to make arrangements for the burial of his wife and daughter.

The remains will be taken to Meansville, Ga., the former home of Mrs. Stevens, Saturday morning. They will be accompanied by Mr. Stevens and several of his wife's relatives. It is probable that Wade Stevens will be allowed to attend the funeral, as he has asked detectives to allow him to go.

Did Mrs. Stevens Have Premonition of Death?

That Mrs. Sarah C. Stevens, the woman who was murdered at her home on the McDonough road Tuesday night, and whose body with that of her adopted daughter, Nellie, was incinerated in the burning house, knew beforehand that she had not long to live, has been declared by some of her friends and relatives.

About three weeks ago Mrs. Stevens visited the office of Etheridge & Etheridge, her lawyers, to get a will which she made some months ago.

"I'm going to die soon," she told P. S. Etheridge at that time. "I look healthy enough, but I know in my heart that I won't live through this year."

She took the will home with her, and it, together with all other valuable papers, was consumed in the fire that set the burning house. The destroyed copy was the only one in existence, but Mr. H. A. Etheridge says that in effect Mrs. Stevens transferred all her property to her husband, to go to her son, Wade, and adopted daughter, Nellie, on his death. Mr. Etheridge says that he probably will appoint Mr. Stevens executor of the estate.

"Mrs. Stevens was not very wealthy," said Mr. Etheridge, "despite the fact that she traded considerably in real estate properties. She built forty or more houses in East Atlanta, and sold them at a very small profit. The farmhouse on the East McDonough road was the only property she owned at the time of her death. All told, I guess she wasn't worth over $10,000."

The Stevens family moved from East Atlanta last fall. They were urged not to go at the time, say relatives.

Mrs. C. L. Golden, sister of the dead woman, says that she feared Mrs. Stevens not to go out into the country.

"You are moving to a death trap," Mrs. Golden says she told her. "Anything might happen to you out there in those woods."

"Well, I guess I'm ready to die," Mrs. Stevens is said to have replied.

BURMAN BREAKS ALL RECORDS BUT LOSES LEAD TO JULES GOUX

Halpit got his Mason back on the track in a few minutes.

DEPALMA DROPS OUT.

Ralph DePalma, in Mercer, dropped out of the race in the eighteenth lap on account of cylinder trouble. He was soon followed by Jenkins' Schacht, which broke a crank case. He went out in the twentieth lap.

Herr's Stutz broke a clutch release in the back stretch and caught fire. He was out of the race. No one was injured.

The boiling hot sun caused considerable tire trouble and one car after another dropped in at the pits for a change.

ZUCCARELLI QUITS.

Zuccarelli's Peugeot, a French car, went out of the race with burned-out bearings after making eighteen laps. This was the first foreign car to leave the track.

Representatives of five nations—the United States, England, France, Germany and Italy—contested today for supremacy in the third annual 500-mile race to be run here. Everything at the speedway emphasized the international phase of the contest. Flags of all nations were flying from the grand stands and from the pits there arose a jargon of many tongues.

Trains and interurbans began early today to carry the thousands to the speedway and at dawn the roads were filled with automobiles. Hundreds of persons slept in the open just outside the speedway.

Inside the speedway Captain Carpenter, of the speedway guards, stationed his men just before the gates were opened and gave them final instructions for handling the throng. Ambulances were placed about the track and everything prepared for the start at 10 o'clock sharp.

Betting grew brisker, with Burman still ruling the favorite by a slight margin over Anderson Stutz.

Considerable money was placed on the foreign cars. Their speed seemed to give the betters confidence in them, although their ability to withstand the terrific vibrative strain of the brick course and avoid tire trouble had been questioned.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the cars began taking their places at the pits and the mechanicians made their last examinations before the race.

The $50,000 offered by the speedway is divided into ten prizes, the winner getting $20,000; second, $7,500; third, $5,000; fourth, $3,500; fifth, $3,000; sixth, $2,200; seventh, $1,800; eighth, $1,600; ninth, $1,500, and tenth, $1,400.

The weather was ideal. During the night the brick track was cleaned thoroughly and was in excellent condition for the contest.

Starter Root ordered all of the cars on the track at 9 o'clock to test out the emergency brakes.

While going at high speed in the home stretch, the signal for the emergency brakes was given and each car had to stop in a short distance.

Other officials were busy at the pits checking up the drivers, mechanicians and pit helpers as only a limited number were allowed in each pit.

THEY'RE OFF.

Promptly at 10 o'clock the twenty-seven cars, led by Carl G. Fisher, millionaire sportsman, began the long race around the two and a half-mile track. The pounding of the motors, cheers of the thousands and waving of flags of the five nations, represented an inspiring scene.

The cars got away with a flying start and were going fifty miles an hour as they came down the long home stretch.

Jenkins' Schacht was the first car to stop at the pits. The machine blew a right rear tire. He lost a lap by the stop.

Before Jenkins got started, Anderson's Stutz drew up at the pits with the same trouble.

GRASSHOPPER PLAGUES COVERING TWO STATES

Crops in New Mexico and Idaho Damaged by Invasions of Pests

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Two grasshopper invasions, one in New Mexico the other in Idaho, already have been reported to the department of agriculture this year. Nothing official has been heard, however, of the rumored appearance of the pests near Chico, Cal., although the government has a 180-acre experiment station there.

"Every year we receive reports of grasshopper plagues from ten to twenty-five sections of the country," said Prof. F. W. Webster, in charge of the work today. "Many of these are local and soon die out; others do considerable damage before they are checked. It has never been possible even to estimate the amount of damage."

Damage in New Mexico Restricted to "Dry Claim"

(By Associated Press.)

ROSWELL, N. M., May 30.—The damage done so far by the grasshoppers in northeastern New Mexico has been restricted exclusively to the "dry claim" region around Elida, but there are no indications as to what destruction the hoppers may bring when they have developed wings, is the way Prof. A. G. Hammar, government entomologist stationed here, described the situation. He based his observations on personal investigation of the hopper-infested area.

"The damage done so far," said the expert, "is very slight, and only grazing land in the dry belt near Elida has been injured. An area of possibly 125 square miles has been infested, and to this all the damage to date has been restricted, due to the fact that the hoppers have not yet developed wings. They are compelled to march and forage as they go, and they have progressed less sthan ten mile sin more than three weeks.

"They probably will develop wings in a month and may migrate a hundred miles or more and do much damage.

"Those I examined are of the migratory species, and not the differential, as has been reported. No great pest, like the country has in the '80s is expected from this species."

100 MOORS ARE SLAIN IN BATTLE WITH FRENCH

Decisive Victory for French Troops, Who Lose Thirty-Six Men

PARIS, May 30.—A decisive French victory over a large body of Moors believed to have been composed of the entire hostile Moroccan forces in the Asoum district, was reported today by Brigadier General Caesar G. Alix, commanding the French army of occupation in Morocco.

After a hot engagement, the Moors fled, leaving 100 dead on the field. The losses of the French troops were thirty-six killed and wounded.

THAT TIRED FEELING

Suggests Grandmother's Remedy

It's true, the season is here with its sudden changes, and the old idea that we need a blood medicine is not without reason. Too much heavy food has caused a torpid liver, sluggish blood, and a weak, tired-out feeling.

Sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses was grandmother's remedy, but that has long since been displaced by Vinol, a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of the cods' liver without oil and the iron blood.

Vinol builds you up, makes you eat more and digest better, makes your blood rich and pure—puts healthy color in your cheeks.

P. O. Barker, of Bowen's Mill, Ga., says: "When I was badly run down last spring I took Vinol in an effort to regain my health and strength and it did not disappoint me. It made me feel as well as ever."

We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you and refund your money if it does not. Elkin Drug Co., Atlanta, Ga.—(Advt.)

CONLEY, TAKEN TO FACTORY, SHOWS WHERE GIRL WAS FOUND; HOW THEY PUT BODY IN BASEMENT

roll of bills I asked him if I could have this in his box and he said I could.

AFFIDAVIT MADE PUBLIC.

The third affidavit of James Conley, the negro sweeper at the National Pencil factory, in which he declares that he assisted Superintendent Leo M. Frank in disposing of the murdered body of little Mary Phagan, has been made public.

The affidavit confirms The Journal's exclusive story in Thursday's night extra and confirms the detailed account of the confession given exclusively in The Journal's early morning edition on Friday.

The negro's admission of complicity in the crime has not changed, however, the theory of the city detectives and the other prosecuting officials, who, with Conley, still charge the crime to Leo M. Frank.

In the third affidavit the negro Conley alleges in substance: That Frank told him to go to the machine room and bring out the body of a girl he had hurt; that he found the girl dead, but at Frank's direction started to carry her out; that the body slipped from his shoulder to the floor of a dressing room; that with Frank's assistance he carried it to the elevator, using a white piece of cotton cloth as a bier; that Frank ran the elevator to the basement; that he (Conley) placed the body on his shoulder and at Frank's direction carried her to the trash pile; that he picked up the hat and shoes from the place where she fell and threw them into the basement; that Frank took him into his private office and hid him in a wardrobe there, while he went out and talked to two ladies, who came up the stairs, that when the women left he wrote the alibi notes at Frank's dictation and that then the superintendent gave him $20 in bills, but took them back, saying that he would give them to him on Monday, that then he was dismissed.

COMMITTED TO TOWER.

On Thursday Judge L. S. Roan, of the criminal division of the superior court, on the petition of Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, signed an order committing James Conley to the Fulton county jail to be held as a material witness in the case against Leo M. Frank. He was allowed to remain at police headquarters Thursday night as a courtesy to the detectives.

If Frank persists in his story, the solicitor general declares that he will be indicted as an accessory after the fact of the murder.

ONE TO THREE YEARS.

If found guilty on this charge Conley will escape with the comparatively light punishment of service of from one to three years in the penitentiary.

The solicitor's statement that Conley will probably be indicted as an accessory after the fact is considered of unusual significance since it shows that despite the confession of the negro, the theory of the authorities that the man indicted by the grand jury is guilty of the crime has not changed.

An official who is fully cognizant of every statement made by Conley in his startling confession Thursday afternoon, in addition to the statement that the negro's admissions have not yet changed the aspect of the state's case.

"An accessory after the fact is defined in the criminal code of Georgia, section 47, as 'a person, with full knowledge that a crime has been committed, conceals it from the magistrate, harbors, assists, or protects the person charged with or convicted of the crime.'

"In most cases the accessory after the fact is punished as for a misdemeanor.

For murder cases, however, section 326 of the criminal code of 1911 says: 'If any person shall receive, harbor or conceal any person guilty of a crime punishable by death or imprisonment and labor in the penitentiary, knowing such person to be guilty, such person so receiving, harboring or concealing shall be deemed an accessory after the fact, and shall be punished by imprisonment and labor in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor longer than three years.'

Should the state be able to show that Conley knew that a crime was being committed in the building, although he was not present and did not see the actual commission of the crime, still, under the law, the negro would be a principal in the second degree, and his offense would be punishable with death.

Apparently, however, it is not the intention of the authorities, to press any charge against the negro except that of accessory after the fact, and thereby they give full credence to his story.

FRANK IS SILENT.

Superintendent Leo M. Frank Friday declined to comment in any wise upon the Conley confession made to the police. The accused man refused the request of a Journal reporter that he or his advisers issue a statement relative to Conley's admissions.

During the day Frank received a number of friends in his cell at the Tower and read every issue of the newspapers apparently with keen interest. While some of his advisers would talk, it seemed to be agreed tacitly that no statement would emanate from Frank or his friends until Luther Z. Rosser, his attorney, returned from Clayton, and could be apprised of the new turn the Phagan mystery had taken during his absence.

Confession Followed Gruelling Examination

Conley's latest confession has created a tremendous sensation about police headquarters.

He made the confession during the course of a sweating which lasted from 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon until nearly 6 o'clock.

The officers present while the negro was being examined were Chief Beavers, Chief of Detectives Lanford, Detective Pat Campbell and Harry Scott, of the Pinkertons.

SOLICITOR KEPT INFORMED.

As the sensational statements were being dragged sentence by sentence from the frightened negro, the officials who were in Chief Lanford's office were in constant communication with Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey. Several times Newton Garner, trusted attache of the solicitor's office, was called in conference by Chief Lanford and each time he carried his report to the solicitor.

When the examination was over and Conley, the sweat pouring from his brow, had been led back to his cell, reporters were admitted to the chief's office, but the only official statement given out was that the negro had made a third affidavit. Chief Lanford stated that there were reasons which made him desire not to give out the details of the negro's confession.

In ten minutes after the conference was over, however, The Journal night extra, carrying the exclusive story of the negro's new confession, reached headquarters, and none of the officials would say that any portion of the story was incorrect.

CONLEY'S SEVERAL STATEMENTS.

The piece-meal confessions of the negro Conley are playing an important part in the Phagan case.

Conley knowing that he had been trapped in lies, made his first admission on last Saturday at the time when the jury was preparing to indict Leo M. Frank for the crime. He then told officers that he wrote the notes found by Mary Phagan's body on Friday before the crime.

The officers got specimens of his handwriting, which they say show conclusively that he wrote the notes found by the murdered girl's body.

They could not conceive of such a crime being premeditated, however, and continued to sweat the negro. Wednesday he broke down again, and told the detectives that he wrote the notes at Mr. Frank's dictation on Saturday, the day of the tragedy.

He told that he was secreted behind boxes on the first floor most of the morning. He told of actions of people and occurrences about the factory, which he could not have known had he not been there on the day of the crime. The negro's statements, except for a few discrepancies in time, which the officers attribute to the ordinary fallability of his mind, were fully corroborated.

This convinced the detectives that Conley knew more of the crime than he had ever told and they kept hammering at him with the result that he broke down again Thursday afternoon.

While the detectives believe that Conley is now telling the truth, they think that he may know even more about the crime, especially the small details, than he told on Thursday afternoon, and they say that they are not going to rest until they are satisfied that he has told the whole truth.

WANT TO CONFRONT FRANK.

The detectives are still extremely anxious that Conley be allowed to face Frank and tell his story to him.

They believe that the negro cannot tell the full story before the factory officials without the nerve of one of the two men breaking down and throwing a new light on the tragedy.

Luther Z. Rosser, counsel for Mr. Frank, is expected to return to the city during the day Friday and efforts will then be made to get his permission to confront Frank with the negro.

Sheriff Mangum has consistently refused to allow the negro to go to Frank's cell with the detectives unless Frank gives his permission. No superior court judge is expected to give an order allowing the interview if Frank objects to it, and as a result the matter depends on the attitude of Attorney Rosser.

"Clever Clothes for Men"

GEORGIA LAWYERS HEAR JUSTICE JOSEPH LAMAR

Hamilton McWhorter and Judge Cobb Also Speakers at Warm Springs

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., May 30.—Over 200 lawyers heard an address at the closing session of the Georgia Bar association last night by Justice Joseph R. Lamar, of the United States supreme court.

Justice Lamar spoke of "The History of the Organization of the Supreme Court."

He told of the early history of Georgia law and its development and influence on present existing laws. Justice Lamar, himself a Georgian, has written several papers on this subject, which at various times have been presented before the Georgia Bar association.

His investigation of Georgia's part in giving to the country its present system of jurisprudence was stressed as the basis for his talk.

"I'M A GEORGIA LAWYER."

"I'm a Georgia lawyer, talking to Georgia lawyers on a Georgia subject," he said.

Justice Lamar traced Georgia's interstate commerce back to the days when it was intercolonial commerce. In that ancient Georgia suit against South Carolina, William Murray, afterwards the great Lord Mansfield, was the attorney for Georgia, and John Wesley, founder of the Methodist church, was a witness at the trial. He has also found unpublished documents showing the very beginning of courts in Georgia. These ancient writings give the names of the court, the attorneys and the jury.

On July 7, 1732, the first courts for the orderly administration of justice were organized in Georgia, a jury of citizens was impannelled, and a case was tried. For many years thereafter July 7 was celebrated as the anniversary of "court day," being then the only civil holiday in the colonies, and serving as a combination of our July 4, February 22 and Thanksgiving day.

With this as a beginning, Justice Lamar traced the gradual unfolding and development of our Georgia law, and showed its influence on the present, how what was harmful had been eliminated, and only that tested by time and experience retained.

HAMILTON M'WHORTER SPEAKS.

Justice Lamar was followed by Judge Hamilton McWhorter, of Atlanta, who spoke against recall of the judiciary. A paper by Alex Smith was then read.

At the morning session the lawyers heard an address by Judge Andrew J. Cobb on "Reverence and Relevancy."

GEN. EVANS' PORTRAIT IS NOW ON CAPITOL WALL

The portrait of the late General Clement A. Evans, painted by Mrs. J. R. Gregory, the Atlanta artist, was delivered to a special committee from the state legislature at the capitol Friday morning.

Representative John o'Ster and Senator Isaiah Williams received the painting, which is of heroic size. It was hung in the foyer of the state house along with those of other famous Georgia statesmen and soldiers.

WHY PEOPLE HAVE STOPPED USING DANGEROUS CALOMEL

A Safer, More Reliable Remedy Has Taken Its Place in the Drug Store and the Home

A few years ago, men, women and children took calomel for a sluggish liver and constipation. They took risks when they did so, for calomel is a dangerous thing. Your family doctor will be the first to tell you this if he discovers you dosing yourself with calomel.

But the drug trade has found a safe, pleasant remedy in Dodson's Liver Tone.

Druggists tell us that their drug stores now sell Dodson's Liver Tone in practically every case of billousness and liver trouble where calomel used to be taken.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a vegetable liver tonic that is absolutely harmless for children and grown people. It sells for 50 cents a bottle and is guaranteed to be entirely satisfactory by all druggists, and any store selling you a bottle will refund your money with a smile if it does not give quicker, gentler relief than calomel without an of calomel's unpleasant after-effects.—(Advt.)

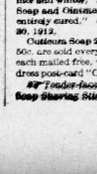
ITCHING AND BURNING TERRIBLE

With Eczema on Middle of Back, Shoulders, Arms, Legs, Ankles and Feet, Pimples and Small Sores, Cuticura Soap and Ointment Entirely Cured.

1016 E. Commerce St., San Antonio, Tex., —"I was troubled for a number of years with eczema on the middle of my back, shoulders, arms, legs, ankles and feet. My case was a stubborn and aggravating one. The eruption was small red pimples. The itching and burning were terrible, almost unbearable, especially at night. I suffered everything in hot weather, so I could get but very little sleep and rest until midnight and often later. There were little pimples and small sores on top of my scalp and all over the parts affected. My feet were very sore and the itching awful.



"I used many remedies that were recommended to me by friends, but received no benefit. I wrote for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I followed the directions to the letter. After using both Soap and Ointment two days and nights I was greatly surprised. The itching and burning were not half so bad and I received more good sleep and rest than I had had all summer and winter. I purchased some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in two months was entirely cured." (Signed) A. P. Shoaf, June 30, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

SHAFT TO MAINE'S DEAD UNVEILED IN NEW YORK

5,000 Bluejackets From North Atlantic Fleet Parade Streets of Gotham

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 30.—Representatives of the army and navy and citizens of New York did honor in New York today to those who perished in Havana harbor in battleship Maine. The occasion was the unveiling at the Columbus Circle entrance of Central park of the national Maine monument, a pylon forty feet high, erected by popular subscription from all parts of the nation.

The ceremonies brought to this city a dozen dreadnaughts of the North Atlantic fleet, the Cuban cruiser Cuba, the secretary of the navy, former President Taft, representatives of the Cuban congress and government, Governor Haines, of Maine, and others.

Although the unveiling exercises proper were not staged until late afternoon, they were preceded by a land parade in which 5,000 blue jackets of the Atlantic fleet took part, augmented by troops from the regular army, the New York national guard, veterans of the Spanish-American war and a company of Cuban artillery, a Cuban band of sixty-two pieces, and twenty sailors from the crew of the cruiser Cuba.

Rear Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow, U. S. N., acted as chief marshal.

A salute of twenty-one guns from each of the battleships at anchor in the Hudson, the placing of wreaths on the monument in behalf of President Wilson, the state of Maine, the state of New York, the city of New York, the Cuban government and one by Rear Admiral Sigsbee, who as a captain was in command of the Maine when she sank, comprised, aside from the ships, the chief features of the unveiling ceremonies. The speakers' program called for addresses by Mr. Taft, Secretary Daniels, Governor Sulzer, Rear Admiral Sigsbee and others.

In addition to the unveiling of the Maine monument, there were held on this Memorial day the usual exercises at Grant's tomb, the Grand Army of the Republic parade and the work-horse parade.

ORATOR FROM SOUTH EULOGIZES DEAD ON GETTYSBURG FIELD

carried the stars and stripes into the heritage of the Montezumas.

QUESTION OF SECESSION.

"But my friends there was another great battle to be fought before the unmistakable status of the union was finally fixed. It was the conflict of internal ideas and forces—the final and crucial test of the republic's strength and durability. The combat took place on the field of battle in the war between the states. The right of the state to secede and the right of the union to prevent it—the status of rights and relationship between state and federal government had to be settled once and for all time.

"This question could not be determined in the councils of peace. It had to be settled by the arbitrament of the sword. Dr. Ellis, a northern man in his history of our country, says truly that the question of secession was never authoritatively settled until the war settled it.

"Hope's precious pearl in sorrow's cup,
Unmelted at the bottom lay.
To shine again when all drunk up
And the bitterness should pass away."

"So the republic once abounting with conflicting opinions as to rights and powers belonging to states and federal government is today harmonious household of sovereign states—the home of a brave and happy people. Here we bow with solemn reverence in honor of our nation's dead; here we pay to their blessed memory the tribute of our united love. Heroism never had truer representatives than those who made this battlefield immortal.

"Here the soldier in blue and the soldier in gray read in each other's eyes courage born of convictions—devotion to principle—and a willingness to do and to die for what they believed was right. Here the soldier in gray met a foeman worthy of his steel, and here the soldier in blue met as brave a warrior as ever shouldered a gun or drew a battle blade.

"Here Union and Confederate soldiers by their daring sacrifice and heroism challenged the admiration of the world. Here northern valor stood up in battle line the bravest of her brave, the noblest specimens of her patriotic manhood, and here southern chivalry marshaled the flower of her army—the noblest types of her splendid citizenship.

"Here the brave Union soldier checked the march of the hitherto irresistible Confederate soldier—here the time of war was turned, and here many contend the decisive battle was fought. Here fought and fell the heroic representatives of the two bravest armies that ever crossed the fields of courage, or battled for what they believed to be right. Here both armies fought for the right as God gave them power to see it.

TWO MIGHTY LESSONS.

"Here in the red glare of destructive battle fire two mighty lessons were taught, one that the union should be preserved and the other that the union should live undivided, and each considerate of the rights of the states.

"Here the Union soldier died that the union might live and here the Confederate soldier in his death put a stress and emphasis on constitutional powers and limitations that will live while the republic lasts and human liberty endures. So, my friends the soldiers of the two armies who baptized this soil with their blood did not die in vain.

"Here with their blood they started the work of cementing the bonds of an everlasting union, for it seems that the fates decreed after this battle that the bonds thus cemented with the mingled blood of brothers north and south should never be torn assunder. Fifty years have come and gone since Gettysburg received her baptism of blood.

"Here death claimed a fearful toll from the ranks of both armies; here Mother Earth drank alike the blood of the victor and the vanquished, and here in this hallowed battleground sleep the knightly warriors of the blue and the gray, while above their dreamless dust floats the Stars and Stripes, the loved flag of a reunited people.

"No fair minded American can listen to the story of the battle of Gettysburg without a deep feeling of reverence and admiration for the heroes of both armies who fought or died here.

"I bring to you a message of good will and fellowship from the people of the south. We honor the memory of the soldiers who wore the gray and we honor with you the memory of the soldiers who wore the blue.

"As an evidence of our recognition and appreciation of the valor and heroism of both Union and Confederate soldiers, and as a token of fraternal love now permeating the hearts of our people, I bring these floral offerings from the flower gardens of Dixie, one for the grave of the soldier in blue and the other for the grave of the soldier in gray.

When I recall the deeds of daring done here—the acts of undaunted courage and heroism, I declare to you that the sublime valor of the heroes of both armies is the priceless heritage of all. In the month of July the survivors of the two armies who battled at Gettysburg will meet in friendly reunion here.

WELDED TOGETHER AGAIN.

"A half hundred years have gone since they looked into each other's aces. The bugle has long since sung truce to them. Together they behold the bow of peace in the bended heavens, and together they look upon the flag of our Union as it blossoms with the stars of reuniten states.

"These war tested veterans are no more divided into hostile camps—no longer arrayed on opposing sides. Their guns have been beaten into the implants of peace, and against each other they shall know war no more.

"My friends what a glorious reunion that will be. The angels will smile upon that gathering, and the God of our fathers will bless and approve it.

"The south accepted in good faith the final decree of the sword. When the brave remnant of Lee's army stacked their guns at Appomattox, General Lee plighted to the Union not only his faith, but the faith of every Confederate soldier and his son, their children and their children's children through all the years and generations to come.

"When bleeding Cuba was smitten, sore with the rod of Spanish tyrany, and lifted her pitiful pleading eyes in hope to the Stars and Stripes, I saw the old soldier of the blue and old soldier of the gray, and their sons bivouaced around the same camp fire and marshalled beneath the same flag.

"I saw Fighting Joe Wheeler, of Confederate fame, and General Shafter, of the Union army; Fitzhugh Lee, the cousin of Robert E. Lee, and Frederick Grant, the son of the Union general to whom General Lee surrendered at Appomattox, all grouped beneath Old Glory's sacred folds in the war with Spain, and I said in my heart 'Land of our fathers through thy length and breadth a tremor passes—look, the dark is done and on thy proud form shines the splendor of the sun; thine own children with heads erect and light on all their faces are happy in the blessings and benefits of a reunited country. With love for our living and tears for our dead, we put behind us the things that divided us once and glory in the beauty and strength of the union ties that bind us together now. This, thank God, is our country—ours to love and cherish—ours to guard against evils from within, and ours to defend from dangers from without.

"Let the heroic dead of the war between the states—the blue and the gray sleep each in the mellow moonlight of his own proud memories. Let the living join hands and hearts about a common center for the good of the republic.

LET ALL WORK TOGETHER.

"Let north and south and east and west all work together for the good of each for the good of all. Rich in the heritage of history—proud of her splendid present, and happy in the rosy promise of a glorious future—the south consecrated in the loves, traditions and incidents of a chivalrous people reconsecrates her heart, her strength and her all to the highest and best interest of our common country. She will guard with intrepid vigilance the civic life and honor of the states and follow faithfully wherever Old Glory bares her beauty to the breeze.

"America, incarnated spirit of liberty! Our hearts and our hopes are all with thee. Here, as the dove of peace bearing the olive branch of love and loyalty circles above the living and the dead, let us pray the God of our fathers to sanctify this feeling of fraternal love and fellowship to the everlasting good and glory of the republic.

"Here on this battlefield, incarnadined with the blood of patriots north and patriots south, let us in the language spoken by the immortal Lincoln at Gettysburg, fifty years ago, resolve that this government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth.

"Let us here declare anew that the welfare of the citizen is the highest end and aim of constitutional government. Let us strive to make our government so good and pure and just that every heart will love it, and every hand will defend it.

"Let me in conclusion employ the language of the loved and lamented Grady, of Georgia: 'Let us resolve to crown the miracles of our past with the spectacle of a republic, compact, united, indissoluble in the bonds of love —loving from the lages to the gulf—the wounds of war healed in every heart as on every hill—serene and resplendent at the summit of human achievement and earthly glory, blazing out the path and making the way up which all the nations of the earth must come in God's appointed time.'"

Ten thousand people gathered at Gettysburg today for the annual Memorial day observance. This afternoon a parade of civic and patriotic organizations with veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars and the Third battalion Fifth United States infantry regiment preceded ceremonies in the soldiers' national cemetery. The exercises at the rostrum included the reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address, besides the oration by Congressman Heflin, of Alabama.

Many Noted Men Speak At Arlington Cemetery

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Veterans of the Civil war and the younger men who engaged in the strife with Spain joined today in paying tribute to the nation's dead. Arlington cemetery was the objective point of the thousands, veterans and civilians alike, although a score of historic graveyards in and about Washington claimed the reverence and homage of hundreds of others.

The principal ceremonies were at Arlington, in which a considerable force of the regular army from Fort Myer took part. One of the most impressive services of the day was decoration of the graves of the "unknown dead."

Nearly a score of government officials and members of congress made speeches. From early morning squads and battalions of marching veterans, sons of veterans and patriotic societies occupied the wide avenues of the capital, laden with flowers and flags, while a flower-filled boat was launched on the Potomac river as tribute to those who lost their lives on the sea.

The regular cabinet meeting at the White House was called off because of the holiday and President Wilson arranged to take a motor trip into Virginia. Many of the cabinet officers had left town.

Secretary Bryan accepted an invitation to attend the memorial exercises at Arlington national cemetery. He did not prepare a speech.

President Wilson was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Miss Margaret Wilson and his two cousins, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones and Fitz William McMaster Woodrow.

CANTON, O., May 30.—Among the floral tributes sent to Mounment hill today were wreaths from President Wilson, George B. Cortelyou, former secretary of the treasury, and Justice William R. Day, of the supreme court of the United States, to be placed on the mausoleum which contains the body of the late President William McKinley.

Graves of 20,000 Men Decorated in Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 30.—Decoration day exercises were held here today at the national cemetery, where lies buried between 15,000 and 20,000 soldiers. The program consisted of musical numbers and addresses.

Judge J. M. Greer, Confederate veteran, delivered the principal address. Separate observances were held by the races in accordance with an order received from Joel M. Ferguson, of Washington, D. C., superintendent of burial grounds.

1,500 Veterans in Line For Parade in Chicago

CHICAGO, May 30.—Fifteen hundred union veterans are expected to be in line this afternoon when the Memorial day parade swings into Michigan avenue at Twenty-sixth street. Many of them will ride in automobiles, more than in previous years, but there is still a large percentage who will demonstrate their ability to trudge along. A few remain who will play in the fife and drum corps. Some of the veterans became indignant yesterday when asked to ride in motor cars.

Mobile Veterans Will Decorate Graves

MOBILE, Ala., May 30.—The Blue and the Gray will join in observance of Memorial day at the national cemetery here this afternoon. A detachment of troops from Fort Morgan will participate, headed by the artillery band of the post.

Everybody's Asking If President Wilson Uses That Mint Bed

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The mint bed in the White House grounds, the existence of which has been revealed by the testimony in the Roosevelt-Newett libel suit at Marquette, is the cause of more feverish newspaper activity right now than the possibility of war with Japan or the changes the senate will make to the tariff bill. An astonishing number of family publications have wired explicit instructions to their Washington writers for a detailed history of the bed.

The demand is for exact information as to who planted it, which president found the most use for it, in what corner of the White House grounds is it located, what are its precise dimensions, does it require constant cultivation, is the crop used for any purpose other than the preparation of the celebrated beverage of the old south, who mixes 'em, does the president, being a southern man, abide by the drink of his fathers, and so on, down to the fractions of fragments of information.

So far, the information collected by those besieging the White House with this important matter has not been extensive. The attack of the writers has been general, and nearly everybody employed about the place has been interviewed, except Mr. Wilson. The attitude of the interviewers has been that the contents of the president's back yard are nobody's business but his own. It is admitted, however, that the bed is there and that it lies somewhere near the corner of the back porch; that it is not bigger than about ten by twelve, and that President Wilson, who is abstemious as Colonel Roosevelt and as tremendous a worker, uses mint only in connection with lamb. If he indulges in drink, which is seldom, he prefers Scotch, according to one authority.

One aged employe, who is from the old south, said these people who entertained so often that a president would or could be a regular "souse" on mint juleps gave him a pain.

"A julep, of course, is not intended as an intoxicant," he said. "While liquor is used in making it, the mint julep is intended primarily as a refreshment to be sipped and enjoyed and lingered over, and no gentleman of the south ever cared for more than one in an afternoon or an evening. Why, man, two or three of them, drank in a hurry, will make one deathly sick. I know, because I have seen it tried by northern men, who had heard about the julep, but did not know how to drink it."

$1,900 IN BILLS STOLEN FROM EXPRESS PACKAGE

Funds Being Expressed From U. S. Treasury Missing, Three Arrests Made

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

RALEIGH, N. C., May 30.—A package of money containing $1,900, being expressed from the United States treasury at Washington to the Merchants bank of Louisburg, was missed from express car on Seaboard Air Line train No. 38, south bound, yesterday just below Raleigh, and the Raleigh police have arrested two negroes and a white man as suspects.

The money was all in bills issued by the Merchants bank of Louisburg, and $900 was found on one of the negroes. The rifled package was found ten miles north of Raleigh and two Raleigh hackmen were found close by.

The police believe the money either was stolen or lost from the car nearer in Raleigh and that the rifled package was carried north of the city as a blind.

The two negroes were spending money freely last night and this led to their arrest and the recovery of $800.

Effective Sunday, May 25. Popular excursions to Warm Springs via A., B. & A. Only $1.00 round trip. Train leaves Union Station 8:00 a. m. Delightful outing.

Let the Junior Miss Note Tomorrow's Opportunities

They are worthy of note!

There are Junior Woolen Suits at, near, and less than half; there are linen dresses at exactly half price.

But here—

Junior $15.00 and $17.50 Woolen Suits $7.95

And not just a few of these, but all of the fine mixture and serge and striped suits in navy, brown and gray!

Usually they are tailored styles with the semi-fitting back of graceful lines. Some show rather fancy collars—sailor collars open—others revers of moire. Suits that the young woman who will travel this summer will find of fine service. $7.95 hardly represents the cost of making such suits.

$12.50, $15, $18.50, $22.50 and $25 Junior Linen Dresses Half Price

Half price, and right now is their season.

These are our classiest linen dresses for young women. Which means that the season's smartest style points—hand embroidery, odd and attractive little turns to the ways the waists are fashioned—some of them are what are called coat dresses, with a waist of one color and the sikrt of another.

And they are all of substantial—in color and weave—long-wearing linens; browns, tans, blues and pinks.

Girls' Balkan Dresses $1.50

Newly arrived and therefore choicer.

Choicer not only because they are so fresh and immediate, but because they show little style points that have just been brought out. One of these is the extremely long waist, simulating the Balkan fashion.

Choose from white and from colors.

Sizes six to twelve years.

Girls' Percale Dresses 98c

These in sizes six to fourteen years.

And these, too, have that attractiveness about them that attaches to newly arrived merchandise. They are of white percale, trimmed with red and blue braids and bands. Cool, summery, serviceable—they are unusually fine values for $1.50.

More of Those Remarkable Children's Wash Dresses at 49c

Remarkable because the ginghams and percales are of such splendid quality—they wash beautifully—and because they are so neatly made and trimmed.

Better Street Car Service.

The Atlanta public is indebted to both the Georgia Railway and Electric Company and the State Railroad Commission for the timely and extensive improvements that are soon to be made in the city's street car service. Some months ago the Commission began an investigation of the need for more cars and better schedules on those routes where travel is heaviest. The company showed a praiseworthy spirit of co-operation and, through its officials, voluntarily suggested and offered to carry into effect many plans for relieving the present congestion. The result is that on ten important routes greatly improved service will be established in the immediate future; and the Company also announces its purpose of replacing, as rapidly as possible, the smaller cars now in use on many lines with cars that are more commodious and up to date.

Of particular interest is that part of the Commission's order requiring the company to submit a monthly report during June, July, August, September and October of the current year showing the number of passengers carried within specified hours, the number of cars operated and the number of seats in each car. By this means there will be established an accurate record indicating more or less precisely the needs of the city's trolley traffic and also the efficiency with which those needs are being met.

In no way is Atlanta's rapid growth more strikingly registered than in the ever-increasing demands on its street car service. The population is becoming not only more dense but also more widely extended. Residence centers are developing in territory which only a few years ago was almost rural, and apartment houses closer in are steadily multiplying. Indeed, this growth has been so speedy and so extensive that the street car company has found it almost impossible to keep pace with the demand upon its facilities.

It is gratifying to know that far-reaching improvements are now to be inaugurated and the public will cordially commend the company for these and all other efforts to meet its increasing responsibilities.

A Vital and Worthy Cause That Needs Public Help.

The Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis Association is doing a work that should appeal to the judgment as well as the sympathy of thinking people. It is not only relieving hundreds upon whom the blight and suffering of the white plague have fallen, but it is also protecting the community as a whole against the spread of this wasteful disease. Its campaign is one of prevention no less than of cure and through its earnest, far-reaching methods it stands as a continuous safeguard to every home in the city. Its physicians and visiting nurses go into districts which are commonly neglected and which for that very reason are likely to become a menace to public health. It maintains a free clinic and furnishes free treatment to persons without means to employ a physician of their own and thus it reaches scores and perhaps hundreds of cases which otherwise would develop beyond the point where they could be helped and would be a constant peril to the community.

Of particular importance and value is the work the Association is doing among the negroes; and in just this connection its service to the average Atlanta household is especially manifest. Long ago, we realized that our homes would never be secure against the danger of tuberculosis until practical measures were taken to check the increase and diffusion of this malady among a class engaged as cooks, washerwomen, housemaids and nurses. If the Association's efforts were limited to this one sphere, it would still merit the public's generous support.

Surely the public-spirited people of Atlanta will not permit so vitally important a work to be narrowed or handicapped for the lack of a few thousand dollars. Yet, the Association must have prompt assistance if it is to continue its endeavors in their present range and proportions. Through private donations it is assured of an annual income of about five thousand dollars. Ten thousand dollars is necessary to carry the work forward and to meet its greatly increased needs. Some months ago a movement was begun to secure help from the public at large, but thus far only a small percentage of the fund required has been raised. It is to be hoped that the rank and file of the people, to whose interests the Association means so much, will awaken to the worthiness of this cause and without further delay contribute the needed sum.

Decatur's Home Coming Day.

The plans which Decatur is making for the observance of Home Coming day on Tuesday, June the third, reveal the spirit of that interesting and progressive community. Under the direction of the local Board of Trade a program is being prepared that will represent not only the town itself, but DeKalb county as well and that will serve to co-ordinate and quicken the energies of both the farmers and business men.

In the forenoon, for instance, Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, will deliver an address on the possibilities of DeKalb county in truck farming, dairying and poultry culture. This event alone would make the day worth while and distinctive; for, Dr. Soule is among the most eminent of American educators who are devoting themselves to agricultural advancement. It bespeaks fine insight on the part of Decatur's merchants and bankers and other business leaders that they are concerning themselves with the development of the outlying country; for, after all, it is upon the progress and improvement of the farm that the growth of most Southern towns depends. The morning exercises will also include addresses by Mr. R. F. Smith, who will discuss the county's advantages as a location for the Fifth district agricultural school, and by Hon. C. Murphy Candler, chairman of the State railroad commission.

In the afternoon, the cornerstone of Decatur's new public school building will be laid, the Decatur troop of Boy Scouts will be awarded the shield they recently won in a field day contest and other interesting events will be staged. The program will conclude in the evening with a smoker by the Board of Trade at which the town's achievements will be recounted and plans for future enterprise devised.

The Progress of Reclamation.

Georgians who are interested in the reclamation of swamp and overflow lands should be encouraged by the fact that such enterprises are being discussed and pressed forward throughout the South. In Florida there is a well supported movement for a State bond issue of millions of dollars to drain the Everglades and in Kentucky far-reaching plans are now afoot to reclaim great areas of farm land which are rendered useless by unregulated streams. The Louisville Courier-Journal cites an instance which is noteworthy for the reason that it illustrates conditions in many counties of Georgia.

"A survey is now being made," says that paper, "for the purpose of determining the best plan for straightening and deepening Blackford creek and a smaller stream known as Caney creek. The question has been agitated for the past four years by the land owners. It is estimated that the work would benefit some fifteen thousand to eighteen thousand acres of land, lying along the two streams, land which is subject to overflows and much of which is not now available for agricultural purposes. The present value of his land is less than twenty-five dollars an acre."

Little wonder that the owners of this property are interested in the drainage question when they realize through proper engineering methods the value of their acres can be raised from twenty-five to one hundred dollars each. In the course of a single year, these creeks destroy or damage much property and keep much more from cultivation. The loss thus entailed is far greater than the cost of drainage would be. It behooves good farmers and good business men in all Southern States, and particularly in Georgia, to encourage in every way possible, the drainage movement.

This the open season for the haberdasher's summer goods.

War On the Heels of Peace.

The signing of a treaty of peace at London today between the Balkan allies and Turkey brings to an end the great peninsula war. Turkey, stripped of the major portion of her power and territory in Europe, retires from the field of action. But the Balkan States continue militant, not now against their old common enemy but among themselves.

Servia is challenging the claims of Bulgaria and Greece is demanding a larger share of the spoils. Vast areas of territory are under dispute and the allies are rushing their respective armies into Macedonia to occupy contested lands.

In these circumstances, the European powers naturally fear a new Balkan conflict and one that would perhaps be more difficult to adjust than the war with Turkey. The Allies would have much at stake in such a strife among themselves. It is possible that they may take a sober second thought and adopt peaceful means of settling their internal differences.

Four Great Democracies

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

A democracy is a social condition where every human being is valued at his intrinsic worth.

The opposite to democracy is such a condition as values a man according to some artificial or conventional standard; as, for instance, because he has money, or because he is a member of some exclusive group.

In democracy each man gets precisely what he earns. In contradistinction to this is the state of things where men get what they have not earned, for any reason whatever.

In the coming state each man will be allowed what he earns and no more. The profits arising from combinations in business, from capital, from the natural rise in values, or from any other source, excepting the earning capacity of the individual, will go to the state.

Democracy is not now. It is a force, of feeling and of reason, as old as humanity. Its other name is justice.

There are four great democracies, realms of effort in which it has never been possible to establish permanent unearned privilege, such as has been set up in society, government and money making. They are as follows:

Art, Religion, Love and Work. In these "a man's a man for a' that."

Art includes painting, drawing, sculpture, music and literature. These are republics. No schemes of men have ever been able to make monarchies out of them, nor to inject into them unjust privileges.

No artist can leave his talent to his son. It dies with him.

No artist has ever climbed to the heights of fame, and remained there, by any other means than his own exertions.

Place, honor and reward in art is regulated by pure justice. You can keep a negro from office in Alabama, but you cannot keep the negro-blooded Alexandre Dumas and Samuel Taylor Coleridge from being kings, the one in story-telling, the other in music.

You may bar a Rousseau or a Voltaire or a Poe from the church or the city council on account of a failure to measure up to the mark in morals, but no amount of moral lapse can prevent them from taking their place in the high priesthood of art.

Art asks but one question: "What can you do?" It cares not one whit who is your father, what is your conduct, nor how much money you have.

Religion is an essential democracy. For a thousand years a steady attempt has been made to organize it on the class system; but the twentieth century is realizing that the Founder of Christianity intended His following to be upon a pure manhood basis. Sectarianism is waning. Religion is growing.

Love is the stubbornest of democrats. We never can be made to love any one because he or she has privilege, place or power. Men and women have always loved one another for themselves alone, and always will to the end of time. Any love that is not for pure personal worth and charm is not love at all, but a degrading substitute. In the realm of lovers is manhood suffrage.

Work is democratic. Among the men who do things it is the person who can do things who counts. When you go to digging ditches, building houses, laying brick, or running a locomotive, it makes not the slightest difference to your employer whether you belong to the first families or have a million dollars in the bank.

All the vast work of this world, all the rank and file of the people who are producing, transporting and improving the products of earth, is organized by necessity upon the ground of merit alone. There are exceptions, but inconsiderable.

It is only among the professionally idle that aristocracies (the artificial kind) persist. Kings, nobles, millionaires, the endowed, those who hold sinecures, sects, clubs, lodges, social sets, and the like continue to cherish the doctrine of unearned goods.

The real people of the world live among the eternal democracies of art, religion, love and work.

When Princess Mary Popped the Question

LONDON, May 25.—Princess Mary of England, only daughter of King George, has proposed to Lord Kitchener. The royal proposal was whispered in the park of Windsor castle one evening not long ago. Field Marshal Lord Kitchener gallantly asked the little princess to talk with her father about the alliance. The match is off.

The grizzled hero of Khartoum, home for a spell from Egypt, was escorting the princess about the grounds. He is sixty-two years old, tall, straight as an arrow, stern as an Indian chieftain. She is sixteen, shy and a hero worshipper.

"SOMETHING IMPORTANT TO SAY."

There was a lull in the conversation as they walked over the well kept grounds, and Princess Mary, with her hand on his arm, told the renowned soldier, amid some confusion, that she had something important to say.

Royal custom demands in cases of courtship between a woman of the royal blood and a man of lesser nobility that the proposal be made by the woman. The embarrassment of this was what the little princess had in mind, and she said so, frankly enough, despite her blushes. She wanted to become her hero's wife, she said, and since she had to propose, she was doing it.

NOT TO BE "TURNED DOWN" EASILY.

For the first time in many years Lord Kitchener smiled. He took heroic pains to conceal his amazement and amusement, however, beyond this one manifestation. He told the princess that he appreciated the great honor she conferred upon him by even considering his eligibility to become her consort, but that he felt much too old to consider.

Something of the answer had occurred to the princess before she put the question and she was prompt with a rejoinder.

With a laugh she waived aside the age objection, saying that her aunt, the crown princess, had married a man many years her elder and had lived a perfectly happy wedded life.

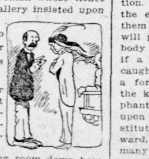
KING LAUGHED; QUEEN WAS FURIOUS.

Thus placed on the defensive, Lord Kitchener made no definite reply to the proposal, suggesting instead that the princess talk the matter over with her father, the king.

A day or so afterward Lord Kitchener told King George of the naive proposal and the monarch roared with laughter. Thinking it too good a joke to keep, the king told Queen Mary. She failed to see the humor of the situation and was furious, and the only tangible result of the little princess' effort to assert her royal prerogative was a week's imprisonment in her own room.—Kansas City Times.

A Batch of Smiles

At a performance in Denver a woman whose ticket only entitled her to a seat in the gallery insisted upon standing in the orchestra aisle.



The manager was called upon to talk to the lady after the usher failed to convince her that she was not within her rights.

"You paid only 50 cents for your set," said the manager, "and it does not entitle you to stand downstairs, and we are not selling standing room here, anyhow, this afternoon."

"What do you charge for standing room down here when you do sell it?" demanded the woman.

"A dollar," was the manager's response.

"Then I'll stand on one foot during the rest of the performance," she replied.

TRAINING WILD ANIMALS

By Frederic J. Haskin

With the circus season comes a renewed interest in the training of animals that are made to exhibit feats of seemingly unnatural intelligence in a manner to hold great crowds spellbound. The lion who permits some lovely lady to rest her head against his great shoulder, the tigers who crouch humbly before their keeper and lick his hand, the elephants who build houses with huge building blocks and dance the can-can, the horses who know the multiplication table and add figures like expert accountants and the dogs who recognize the flags of all nations and have a special salute for the one representing their native land are only a few of the achievements which have been brought about by the patient, skillful work of the animal trainer.

At one time the training of animals was regarded as an inferior calling, and those engaged in it were looked upon as cheap fakirs entitled to but little respect. This was partly due to the cruel and barbarous practices said to be required to gain submission from the animals. A great change has come about within recent years. Animal trainers are now beginning to work scientifically. The principles of animal psychology as laid down by Darwin and other great scientists are being applied by many trainers in their work. The results show a greater display of intelligence than was brought about by the earlier trainers and it is secured with less suffering to the animals.

The early lion trainers beat off the lions with hot iron bars, thus inspiring them with a fear of too close contact with humanity. Such instruments are seldom if ever resorted to now. A woman trainer, who, with her two large lions, has attracted attention in most of the large cities of the world because of the docility of her big beasts, claims that she has never been forced to resort to brutal treatment. Before entering a cage she made the acquaintance of her lion by days of preserving visits to the house in which he was kept. He learned to know the sound of her voice before she entered his cage. Her first visit inside the cage was made with great caution. It amounted to no more than standing for a minute inside of the door. The visit was repeated frequently until the beast became fully accustomed to her, and each time she stayed a little longer, talking to the animal in a calm, firm tone. After she was able to enter the cage and spend some time without exciting any antagonism from the lion she had a chair brought into the cage. This was done a number of times before she attempted to sit in it and was always so placed that she could keep her eyes directly upon the lion. She always avoided any sudden motion calculated to excite the animal, but by degrees began to sit in the cage for longer periods until the lion seemed to take little notice of her. By perseverance she taught him to take food from her hand, and other tricks followed only by patient, careful training. She used no instrument other than a flexible whip. "People who do not understand call the whip cruel," she said. "It is really not so. When I lash the whip through the air with a loud smack I am really only giving an order to the animal in the way he understands best. The crack of the whip indicates that its force is spent before it touches his body."

Most tricks are taught to animals by constant repetition. Opinions are divided as to whether it is best to have a trick repeated a number of times in one day or only once a day for a number of consecutive days at the same hour. Much depends upon the condition of the animal. Trainers recognize the fact that the wildest animals generally have the most sensitively organized nervous systems, and that the best results will be secured by methods least annoying or fatiguing to the animal. A trick which requires close concentration, such as the counting exercises done by trained horses, must be begun by short lessons with adequate rest periods in between. It has been found that animals have better memories than many human beings and that something once learned is easily revived in the memory, even though some time passes before its performance is called for.

Most animals learn by the trial and error method which is similar to that of a child. If the first attempt fails he may discover the reason by natural instinct and correct it in another effort. Prof. John B. Watson, of Johns Hopkins university, has been conducting some interesting experiments in animal psychology which have had some results valuable to animal trainers. He has planned a sort of maze through which a white rat he was studying must find his way before he reached the center where food was placed to reward his effort. The maze contained an intricate number of turns and blind passages in which at first the poor animal wandered around helplessly for hours. Having once found the food, it seemed to know instinctively that its effort would be rewarded. In a similar way the following morning when it was placed again at the opening of the maze. Within a few weeks the little animal had learned the turns of his unique cage so well that he was able to reach his food in 10 seconds.

John Burroughs objects to all laboratory experiments in animal psychology. He believes that they supply comparatively little valuable material because of the fact that animals out of their natural environment do not behave in a natural manner or display their natural instincts. The laboratory born animals usually selected for scientific study are, in the opinion of the great naturalist, poor specimens with artificial natures whose actions are specifically different from those of wild animals in their native grounds.

Despite many marvelous exhibitions which seem to indicate otherwise, scientists are still of the opinion that few if any animals are gifted with a sense of numbers. The dogs and horses which add and divide with such skill in the presence of an audience receive some suggestion in the look or tone of the trainer which indicates to them the number of barks or foot strokes to be given for each separate task. The degree of concentration required from both animal and trainer seems quite as remarkable as would be the power of computation if really possessed by the animal seeming to demonstrate it.

Few animal trainers exhibiting trained elephants have been able to secure from them the degree of comprehension which the ignorant Hindu coolies in India take as a matter of course from the elephants they have charge of. The enormous feats of digging and lifting which the elephants perform in the building of public works in that country could never be secured by the English officers or workmen in charge of the construction. There seems to be a subtle sympathy between the elephant and his native caretaker which enables them to understand each other. The fiercest elephant will permit his keeper to go to sleep against his huge body and will protect him from any disturbance, while if a stranger attempts to approach him he will be caught up in the huge trunk and flung backward with a force sufficient to crush him. Kipling's story of the keeper who would indicate by taps upon the elephant's toes the number of days he was to be absent upon his debauch, the animal's obedience to the substitute for that number of days and his revolt afterward, has been called a ridiculous exaggeration, but many have vouched for the possibility of such a circumstance. Most elephant trainers are of the belief that these animals are possessed of an intelligence superior to that of most others, and that they learn all kinds of tricks readily from a keeper who shows them proper kindness.

A jaw-tattoo that would raise a mound over the right eye would be serious to us, not to say momentous.

Dear Mum, please make the next problem about ladies, as my husband can't afford to lose the day's work. CHIEF-IN-FACT POLICY WINS IN POLICE BOARD

Board Joins Chairman Mason in Giving Chief the Right to Name His Own Men

The policy that Chief Beavers ought to be chief in fact as well as in name won a signal victory Thursday night in the police board when Detective J. B. Jewell, the chief's nominee for a vacant sergeant's place, was elected.

Carlos Mason, chairman of the board, has been the leader in support of this policy. He has consistently maintained ever since he went on the board that the chief of police should name his own men—in other words, that since the responsibility for the success or failure of the department rests on the chief's shoulders, therefore, he should have the right to select the subordinate officers upon whom he is dependent in such a large measure.

At the regular meeting of the board on the first Tuesday night in May the board was divided on the election of a sergeant. Chairman Mason, as usual, contended that the chief should nominate the man for the place. In this he was supported by five other members of the board. But the remaining six members of the board took the view that the board should elect. So there the matter stood. It was six to six—a deadlock.

Since that meeting the "chief-in-fact" policy has grown in favor. Members of the board who first contended for an exercise of their own authority, in preference to the chief's, have come more and more to the view that efficiency and discipline can be maintained only by making the head of the department the real head. And so when the board, at a special meeting Thursday night, took up the election of a sergeant, nine members of the board cast their votes for the chief's nominee.

Also the board adopted resolutions, introduced by C. R. Garner, expressing confidence in Chief Beavers and Chief Lanford. They are as follows:

"Whereas, it is essential that there should be harmony in the police force and its officers; and

"Whereas, at this critical time there should be no mistake in the public mind concerning the attitude of this board toward Chief James L. Beavers and Chief N. A. Lanford, and their work as chiefs of the forces under them; be it

"Resolved, That the board has implicit confidence in the chiefs, their work and the entire force; and be it further

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this board that the chief of police should nominate the officers under him in his work."

BOY HIT BY STREET CAR; IS BATTED ACROSS PAVE

Seven-Year-Old Charley Romines Saved by Fender From Death

Little seven-year-old Charles C. Romines was injured Thursday afternoon on Gordon street, near Dunn, in West End, when he was struck in the back by a Whitehall to West End car and catapulted into the middle of the street, his head striking the ground.

The child was on his way home from school and attempted to cross the track. Passengers on the car are of the opinion that he miscalculated his distance and the time he had to get by and was struck by the fender in his dash across the tracks.

The little fellow was carried to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Romines, at 250 Ashby street, and medical attention summoned. He was found to be severely bruised about the body, and there was a bump on his head where it came in contact with the hard ground.

Mr. Romines stated Saturday that it had not yet been determined whether or not his son was internally injured.

The public is invited to call at the Maier & Berkele china rooms, Tuesday and Wednesday to see the exhibition.

YOUNG HOBO LOCKED UP AS STEVENS WITNESS

Lonnie Blevins, a bedraggled hobo seventeen years old, who applied at police headquarters for something to eat Thursday morning, was locked up by the police on suspicion that because he is a hobo and has been in the outskirts of town for several days he may know something about the burning of the Stevens home Tuesday night and the death of Mrs. Stevens and her adopted daughter. No other ground for suspicion was apparent. Blevins denied that he knew anything of the fire. He told a weird "sob" story of countrywide hobo travel since the death of both parents in San Antonio, Tex., about three years ago, left him a homeless orphan.

ATLANTIANS IMPRESSED BY CHATTANOOGA SHOW

Manufacturers' Exhibit There Stirs Enthusiasm for Similar Show Here

Impressed by what they had seen, the Atlantatians who formed the party that looked over the manufacturers' exhibit in Chattanooga Thursday, returned to Atlanta Thursday night, imbued with new spirit to work for the success of the Atlanta chamber of commerce plan for a similar exhibit here of Atlanta-made wares.

There were sixty-five members of the party, at the head of which were Wilmer L. Moore, president, and several of the directors of the Atlanta chamber of commerce. They traveled in two special cars, arriving in Chattanooga at 11:35 o'clock Thursday morning.

They found a four-story building housing the Chattanooga exhibition, on a ground space of 50 by 110 feet. The rents paid by the exhibitors have been found to pay all expenses, pay interest on the bonds which were issued to purchase the property for the Manufacturers' association of Chattanooga, and set aside a sinking fund to pay off the bonded indebtedness. The exhibit has been open for four years, and last year its capacity was doubled. There are 120 exhibitors displaying there now, out of 300 that Chattanooga has.

The Atlantians were told that during the Confederate reunion in Chattanooga this week some 25,000 visitors passed through the building. It is the custom each year for the manufacturers to keep open house for their fellow citizens on New Year's day. On January 1 of this year, it is said, 15,000 Chattanoogans visited the exhibits.

With 548 manufactories in Atlanta, it is believed by those who are behind the movement for a manufacturers' exhibit that at least twice as much space as the Chattanoogans need can be utilized by Atlanta exhibitors.

STATE TO APPEAL DECISION IN TALLULAH FALLS CASE

Attorneys Confident They Can Win Over Power Company in High Court

BY SAM BELL.
(Journal Staff Correspondent.)

CLAYTON, Ga., May 30.—Preparations for an appeal in the case of the state against the Georgia Railway and Power company contesting the ownership of Tallulah Falls, were begun by Attorney General Felder Friday following a verdict against the state in the Rabun superior court Thursday afternoon.

Unless the attorney general is able to set aside this verdict on a point of law in the state supreme court, the first to save Tallulah Falls will have ended really with the decision of twelve Rabun county farmers that the power company's title to the falls and the adjacent land is without a flaw.

Following the decision Thursday night Attorney General Felder gave immediate notice that he would file a motion for a new trial. The state had given evidence during the three days of the trial that the case would go to the high court for final adjudication.

According to Edgar Watkins, one of the attorneys for the state, the appeal to the high court will be made on Judge Jones' charge that the plats of the grants issued to the Tallulah lands in 1818-1820 be controlled by the call of the property rather than the field notes of the survey made at the time the grants were completed. It is this opinion that the state will win ultimately on this point of law.

It developed Thursday that every lawyer assisting the attorney general in the prosecution of the suit was employed directly by the state, and Mrs. Longstreet and the conservation association had withdrawn completely from the case.

On Monday Mrs. Longstreet wired the attorney for the conservation association, R. E. Ellis and W. R. Little, that unless they could postpone the trial that their services were not needed by the association.

According to the telegram it was Mrs. Longstreet's idea that the suit could be allowed to go by default and a new bill could be presented by the state and sent to trial in Rabun county. As this could not be done with all sides insisting on a trial, Attorney General Felder attached Attorneys Ellis and Little to the state's representation.

No interest was manifested in the Thursday session. Argument was completed at 9 o'clock, and Judge Jones' charge to the jury lasted about forty-five minutes. The jury was out more than two hours.

DIXIE FLYER WRECKED BUT NONE ARE KILLED

Engineer, Fireman, Baggage Master and Several Passengers Reported Hurt

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 30.—The St. Louis and Jacksonville Dixie Flyer, southbound, collided early this morning three miles north of Martin, Tenn., with a northbound freight. The collision occurred on the Illinois Central line.

It is reported here that the engineer and fireman of the passenger train and the baggage master, Thomas Dickerson, of Nashville, were injured.

A telephone message says some passengers sustained minor injuries, bruises or cuts from flying glass and such were carried to Fulton, Ky. It is said the passenger crew saw the oncoming freight and stopped their train. The freight, on a down grade, could not stop. Eighteen freight cars were ditched.

The wreckage was cleared by 10 o'clock.

AMERICUS MAY LOSE BIG SEABOARD SHOPS

AMERICUS, Ga., May 30.—Seemingly well authenticated reports here to the effect that the Seaboard railway company will to a great extent remove its Americus shops to Jacksonville serve to cause considerable uneasiness in business circles. The Seaboard shops here employ about 200 men, and is one of the city's best industrial enterprises.

To the end of securing more definite information regarding the proposed dismantling of the shops here, the board of trade has put itself in communication with President Harahan, and a definite answer is now awaited.

Fight Hog Cholera

MOULTRIE, Ga., May 30.—The Moultrie chamber of commerce will direct a campaign to stamp out hog cholera in Colquitt county. The county lost, at a conservative estimate, more than $100,000 worth of hogs from cholera last year, and meat production was set back two or three years.

Eighty-Pound Melon

PAVO, Ga., May 30.—Brooks county still holds her supremacy in agriculture. R. S. Thomas Thursday sent to town from his melon patch a watermelon weighing eighty pounds. E. J. Carroll, another farmer from Brooks exhibited a well developed cotton blossom and states there are plenty more in his field. Crops in Pavo district are fine.

EYE SYMPTOM NOT FATAL

We have heard it stated that no case of Bright's Disease ever recovered that had progressed so far that the patient was becoming blind.

These are truly "last minute cases," but that recoveries have been reported in these cases under Fulton's Renal Compound is a fact. For instance, the following items were given us by the physician attending a Mr. Nash, an S. P. R. R. Conductor of Oakland, Cal.:

There was five per cent of albumen, casts in abundance, enlarged heart and almost bursting dropsy. Patient became nearly blind. The family physician in Napa said the case was hopeless and he was taken to the S. P. R. R. Hospital of Oakland. He continued to fail and left greatly discouraged. The physician then called put him on Fulton's Renal Compound, aiding it with heart treatment, etc. In six months patient was ready for his train. The doctor handed us the following report:

Specific gravity	1020
Albumen	None
Casts	None
Eye sight	Normal
Weight and strength	Normal

People having Bright's Disease owe it to themselves and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. It can be had at Frank Edmondson & Bro., 11 N. Broad St. and 106 N. Pryor St., Atlanta.

WEBB BILL TO GET ACID TEST IN FEDERAL COURTS

Anti-Jug Train Law Will Ultimately Be Put Up to U. S. Supreme Court

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The action of the United States Express company and the Rock Island railway, in refusing to accept shipments of intoxicating liquors for delivery in towns in Iowa, notwithstanding the fact that the liquor had been paid for in advance and was intended for the personal use of the consignees, is to bring into the federal courts a suit that will test the constitutionality of the new Webb law, passed over the veto of President Taft at the last session of congress.

Some of the preliminaries of the suit have been arranged in this city during the past two days by attorneys representing the National Liquor Dealers' association, and the action will be filed before one of the federal courts of Iowa in a short time, and pushed up as rapidly as possible to the supreme court for final decision, regardless of which side wins in the lower courts.

There has never been a decision on the question raised in Iowa, although several times the supreme court has rather squinted in the direction of a theory that would, if adopted by that body now, uphold the Webb law to be unconstitutional. A square and flat-footed decision is what both sides want, and the forthcoming suit will be planned with a view to having such a decision rendered.

The Webb law provides that the machinery of the federal government is to be used for the enforcement of state prohibition laws, and its enactment had been earnestly demanded by the temperance people of the country twenty years prior to the favorable action of the last congress.

The suit will be prepared and brought under the direction of Lawrence Maxwell, of Cincinnati, Ohio, one of the counsel for the National Liquor Dealers' association, and an attorney of wide reputation. It was he who furnished the legal arguments on which President Taft relied for his veto of the Webb bill.

If the case should be decided by the supreme court on its technical merits, it is believed by good lawyers in congress that the liquor dealers may win, but if, as seems the more likely, it is decided on other and broader grounds, it is believed that the temperance people will win. Incidentally, it may be said that the men representing the liquor interests do not seem to be particularly hopeful of the ultimate outcome.

WRECK OF HAVERFORD TOWED TO PORT FRIDAY

Nearly 1,000 Passengers Rescued Thursday When Great Ship Struck Rocks

(By Associated Press.)

QUEENSTOWN, May 30.— Several powerful tugs towed the American line steamship Haverford into harbor this morning. They released her from her dangerous position in Rocky bay, immediately west of Cork Head, at high tide at 1 o'clock. She had been lying on the rocks since early yesterday afternoon, when with 134 cabin and 850 steerage passengers aboard, she went ashore in a dense fog.

When she was brought into port today she was down by the bows with twenty-one feet of water in her forehold and a considerable quantity in No. 2 hold.

Rocky bay, where the Haverford struck, is in a very exposed position. Had the weather been at all rough, the steamer would have been a total loss.

The rescued passengers, nearly a thousand in number, gathered today at various points of vantage along the shore to get a close view of the damaged steamer.

All the baggage belonging to the cabin passengers has been landed and they are to proceed to New York on the Baltic.

It is not yet known to what extent the freight and heavy baggage of the other passengers have been damaged.

Are Rheumatic Sufferers Negligent?

Many Suffer Excruciating Agony for Years Without Investigating the Cause of Their Pain or Its Cure.

Rheumatism frequently comes from uric acid poisoning. Uric acid accumulates from undigested food remaining in stomach and intestines, which ferments and putrefies and generates this poisonous acid. If not expelled promptly it gets into the blood, and finally forms crystalline deposits which settle in joints and muscles and stiffen them.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT has been remarkably successful in the treatment of rheumatism resulting from uric acid poisoning. It is a true uric acid solvent which will break up the deposits already formed, dissolve the uric acid out of the tissues and hold it in solution until expelled in the urine. It will not cure your rheumatism overnight; neither did your rheumatism come overnight. But JACOBS' LIVER SALT will relieve you more promptly and surely than anything else because it thoroughly purges the system of fermenting waste, eliminates the poisonous uric acid and purifies the blood.

Almost without exception the sufferer from rheumatism is subject to constipation, biliousness or dyspepsia, and a sluggish liver is at the bottom of the whole trouble. JACOBS' LIVER SALT stimulates both liver and kidneys and makes them keep your system clean. No other liver medicine has the same solvent action upon uric acid, therefore insist that your druggist give you the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT. If he hasn't it, full size jar sent upon receipt of price, 25c, postage free. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta.—(Advt.)

George A. A. Newett, Who Said Roosevelt Got Drunk

The fact that George A. Newett, publisher of the Ishpeming (Mich.) Iron Ore, has a big contract on his hands to prove that Colonel Roosevelt "got drunk frequently," has not worried him. He made the charge in his newspaper during the heat of the campaign when the Bull Moose men were showing great strength in Michigan. The colonel filed suit for $10,000 damages, not because he wanted the money, but because he wished to vindicate his reputation.

With a host of witnesses Colonel Roosevelt arrived in Michigan Sunday. A half dozen men known to fame, such as William Loeb, Jr., his private secretary when president; Robert Bacon, former ambassador to France, and Truman H. Newberry, former secretary of the navy, who have known him intimately, went to testify they had never seen him under the influence of liquor.

NEGRO CONFESSES DOUBLE MURDER AND GETS LIFE

Deaf Mute Says He Killed Son of School Superintendent and Negro Woman

(By Associated Press.)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 30.—Haynes Terry, a negro deaf mute, today confessed to the murder of Russell Mann, white, and Mayme Steele, a negress, and attack upon Carrie Mason, also a negress, and Mrs. Mann at the negro branch of the Tennessee school for the deaf and dumb, on the night of March 17.

The confession was made in court when Terry was arraigned on the charge of murder. He was given a life sentence in the penitentiary. Three other defendants who were charged as accessories were exonerated by Terry and were released by the court.

W. R. Mann is assistant superintendent of the school and the dead boy is his son. The Steele girl was a pupil in the school and Carrie Mason was a negro teacher.

Terry assigned as his motive that he feared expulsion or reprimand and he sought to get rid of the superintendent and the teacher. He claimed he attacked young Mann and Mrs. Mann and the Steele girl by mistake, thinking they were the school officials.

Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effect of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply.

The Hardest Nut of All, Rheumatism, is Cracked by S. S. S.

It sounds queer to take a blood bath but that is precisely the effect of most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines direct into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to The Swift Specific Co., 127 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

AMBASSADOR PAGE IS RECEIVED BY THE KING

New U. S. Ambassador to England Presents Letters of Credence to Monarch

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 30.—Walter Hines Page, United States ambassador to the court of St. James, was received today by King George, to whom he presented his letters of credence.

Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, presented the new ambassador. Then Mr. Page went through the formality of presenting to the king and queen the members of the embassy staff, most of whom had attended many courts and levees in company with the late Whitelaw Reid.

Ambassador Page and his secretaries wore ordinary evening dress, which American diplomats always assume at levees. With the naval and military attaches in uniform, they drove from the hotel where the ambassador is staying, to Buckingham palace, in royal carriages with the coachmen and footmen in the scarlet livery of the British court. The string of royal carriages passing through Mayfair to Buckingham palace attracted considerable attention.

Speaking of the audience afterward, Ambassador Page said:

"It was one of the most pleasing experiences of my life. The king and queen spoke frankly, cordially and kindly on a number of subjects. They asked after President Wilson and his family."

Harold Fowler, secretary to Ambassador Page, made his first appearance as a diplomat at today's audience.

Mr. Page has received innumerable invitations both to public and private banquets, which with the court functions during the season will keep him busy.

After the royal audience, Ambassador Page called on Paul Cambon, the French ambassador and dean of the diplomatic corps. Within the next few days he will pay his respects to other ambassadors.

Prominent Texas Democrat Succeeds James T. Dubois at Post

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Thad A. Thompson, a wealthy and prominent business man of Austin, Tex., has been selected for United States minister to Colombia, to succeed James T. Dubois.

Mr. Thompson was a delegate to the Baltimore convention and has been active worker in the Democratic ranks. He is a personal friend of Postmaster General Burleson.

The controversy betwen the United States and Colombia over the partition of Panama from the latter country will be a problem Mr. Thompson will have to handle. Secretary Bryan declared a few days ago, after having had several conferences with Senor Betancourt, Colombian minister here, that negotiations looking to an agreement with the South American republic would not be begun until a minister had been selected.

It is one thing to make soda crackers that are occasionally good.

It is quite another thing to make them so that they are always better than all other soda crackers, always of unvarying goodness.

The name "Uneeda"—stamped on every biscuit—means that if a million packages of Uneeda Biscuit were placed before you, you could choose any one of them, confident that every soda cracker in that package would be as good as the best Uneeda Biscuit ever baked. Five cents.

WHAT ANNE RITTENHOUSE SAYS

LITTLE wraps are essential for mild weather. One cannot go abroad in the open with a thin gown that is somewhat elaborate unless there is a covering to hide its social gaiety.

Those who lead simple lives in the depth of the country in the summer are compelled to have light wraps on account of the weather more than on account of fashion, but the woman who lives anywhere near a center of pleasure and who takes part in it is in a quandary as to what to do when she wishes to cover a low evening gown.

There are coats left over from the winter, it is true, but they are not the right kind of thing to wear on a mild summer evening; they are too heavy and they are not made of suitable materials unless one has been so wise as to forethought as to wear a satin or chiffon wrap heavily padded with lamb's wool, which can be removed when it becomes too hot. This leaves the wrap inappropriate for spring and summer weather.

But only the few have thought of this economy and the great majority are facing the problem of buying something that is only to be used occasionally—and this is, to many minds, the most extravagant purchase of the year. Any one of us is quite willing to put all our savings in a suit, a frock, a hat, or any garment that is to stand daily wear and must be depended upon to give admirable service. But a garment for an occasion—oh, dear! it's a problem.

A summer wrap is always regarded as a luxury except by those who are rich enough to regard all luxuries as necessities. A woman debates for a long time before buying what she thinks she may possibly do without, and in this category she puts the summer evening wrap. She wants it serviceable and yet she does not want it to look purely as if it were bought for that purpose. She wants it sheer and supple, and yet she does not want it to wear out before September arrives.

Wraps of Thin Satin

THE best dressmakers will argue against black satin for evening wraps because they claim that it belongs to age and not to youth or middle age. Yet there is no one fabric that gives better service than this, and it can be made to appear gay and festive by a fanciful way of draping and a bright lining.

The day has gone when women thought it was the correct thing to use self-colored lining or one of plain white; fashion has changed in this as in many other things and one can gayly subscribe to vivid fruits and jungle flowers on scarlet or purple linings without a feeling that good taste is desecrated, so much does custom do.

Therefore a black satin wrap, provided it is short, can be draped and lined in such a manner that it will present the festive appearance over any thin summer gown, whether simple or elaborate.

If one chooses it it should be made so that the lining would be visible in patches and take away from the somber effect of the black. It could be turned up at the hem—which is a new trick in fashion—and rolled back as cuffs on the sleeves and put as a facing to the high rolling collar.

If the lining is crimson with a huge blue apple on it and the soft stiff green leaves it is exceedingly attractive against the dull surface, and fashion allows so much these days in the way of color combinations that no one would criticise a red and blue coat lining over a pink or purple evening gown.

The wrap should be short, remember, as that is the principal feature to be followed, no matter what the fabric or the method of draping. It should be folded in long bias lines from back to front, going upward, and fastened with some large ornament at the left of the waist. If one likes fringe, silk, velvet or jet, then it can be added to the hem.

Wraps of Flowered Fabrics.

EVERY woman does not want to indulge in the luxury of a perishable fabric like flowered chiffon over satin trimmed with lace, because it does not suit the rest of her wardrobe and it looks out of place in train or trolley. This kind of wrap is at the height of fashion and is the first thought of every one who wants a wrap, but it must be chosen with exceeding care in relation to one's environment and social opportunities.

In small towns or summer colonies where the women walk to and fro in the evening, the flowered wrap is all very well, and it can be made at home by a skilful draper at a moderate price. If one lives in a city or takes one's pleasure there in the evening, then the flowered wrap is quite out of place.

It is better to choose black and white-check silk lined with white satin or striped bengaline silk in dull Chinese blue or deep Burgundy red. These fabrics are made up in the same way as the flowered ones, for coats of any kind are not fashionable for evening wear—that is, coats cut on regulation lines with long sleeves and straight fronts.

Every evening wrap must resemble a fancy cape with its loose swinging sleeves, when there are any, its rolling collar and its drawn up hem to look as though one had caught the fulness in front with the hand and were holding it in to the body. It is for this reason that soft silks are used instead of stiffer fabrics and that voile or chiffon cloth is so admirable.

The dressmakers will tell you to get taffeta, watered or changeable. And the dressmakers are right, for this fabric is growing in power every week and is used as an offset to tulle on some of the most expensive dinner gowns of the season. It makes an admirable wrap and its economy lies in the fact that it is not necessary to line it.

When making it one wants to cling to the effect of being very old fashioned. Box pleated quilling is used along all the edges and often below this there is a four-inch silk fringe, something about the whole garment will then suggest an old print.

Twenty Injured

(By Associated Press.)

AKRON, Ohio, May 30.—Twenty persons were injured, some very seriously, in a street car collision on the Akron, Bedford and Cleveland lines, near Akron, today.

THE EVENING STORY OVER THE WAY

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

Melissa Owens couldn't remember when she first began to envy the woman in the house across from her. It certainly was not when the fine new house was being erected. No, it was not then. She had watched its progress with almost childish delight.

"It's going to be a beauty, Jim," she exulted to Mr. Owens. "It's twice as fine as any house around here. It ought to make property go up."

"That's so," he answered, "as likely as

"Not at home."

not it'll make property go up with a boom. Then we'll sell out and—"

"Sell out!" she echoed. "Indeed, we won't sell. We'll stay here and enjoy being worth ever so much a front foot."

"I don't see what difference it can make being worth more if we don't want to sell. If it's too precious to sell it's worth a lot of money, whether it's worth anything or not."

"To us," she corrected. "But if property increases, as I expect it will, it'll be worth a lot to everybody."

"Well, I don't see what possible difference that'll make," he considered, with a man's slowness in catching the feminine viewpoint.

"It makes a lot," said Melissa, with a little hug and laugh for his ignorance.

As the building went on she became more and more excited. After the carpenters had gone at night she and Mr. Owens fell into a habit of going over the big new house with the two small Owenses toddling at their heels. And her delight in the progression of the work could not have been greater had she been ordained to move into it, bag and baggage, upon its completion. In the course of time the Owens family found themselves locked out of the enchanting place. Mrs. Owens bewailed the fact as they walked back to their small cottage.

"I think it's the meanest thing," she said. "I was so interested watching it. I can't be happy if I don't see it finished."

"Never mind, lollipop," cheered Mr. Owens. "Our locking out is temporary only. I know Grugen, who has the painting contract. That'll let us see it the very last thing. They'll have some surprises for us by that time."

They did. When Mrs. Owens next saw the house it was full of innovations of which she had never even dreamed. The painter obligingly showed her everything, from the secret hiding place for silver to the wonderful cooling closet. Though now the visits were made perforce in the day and without her husband, they were a continual pleasure to her. And she detailed the result of her observations to him at night while he smoked his pipe, a baby on either knee.

"I never saw a place as convenient," she said, without a trace of envy. "If you get off early Saturday we'll go over it together. I want to show you the dear, secret place for silver. You touch a little spot in the panelling, and it falls back, leaving an open place. You'd never find it if you weren't shown. We could have one put in—"

"But we've got no silver," objected Mr. Owens.

"No," Melissa's laugh rang gaily out. "We've not no silver. I forgot that. We've so much else that I never thought about it. And, indeed, it doesn't matter."

The owner of the new house never appeared to inspect it. When it was finished decorators came and wonderful furniture was carried in. If Mrs. Owens ever gave it a covetous thought it was quite unknown even to herself. And when the owners, a man and wife, finally appeared and took possession she enjoyed the joy that was in store for them. They proved to be exclusive and never returned the calls that the friendly neighbors made.

"Not at home," the pompous servant answered to one and all.

Mrs. Owens reddened when she thought of her impulsive welcoming call. And one day she awoke to the fact that her cottage was small and mean; the curtains poor and out of taste; the babies troublesome; the life sordid and incomplete. She began to wish for a limousine, like the one that drew up at her unneighborly neighbor's door; for the fine house and clothes that differentiated this neighbor from the others; for the ease and beauty of the living across the way. She never mentioned it to her husband, struggling with the problem of providing a mere living. But she brooded over it till an ugly little pucker appeared in the smooth forehead.

One morning one of the rosy babies sickened. Before midday she was worse. The doctor came and whispered the dread word pneumonia. And then began a battle, the victorious end of which was to leave Melissa Owens graver, braver, and sweeter, and unrepining under the ills life had allotted her.

The doctor came several times a day. The tragic face of the mother haunted his waking and sleeping hours. One day he was able to speak of hope and one day of the certainty of recovery. Melissa sobbed as if he had told her that the child would die. As she let the doctor out a stranger stood upon the threshold.

"your neighbor across the way. May I come in?"

Almost in silence Melissa led the way to the sickroom. "I can't bear to be away from her," she apologized.

"It's where I wanted to come," said the other. "I've been away for nearly two weeks. I did not know your baby was ill until this morning. I came right over. I was a trained nurse before I was married. You'll let me help a bit with the nursing, won't you?"

"You're very kind," faltered Melissa, "but"—

"Please don't finish that sentence," said the visitor. "I'm only a stranger to you, I know, but—I want so to come. It isn't alone my old professional instinct urging me to be where sick folks are. It's the babies. I'm hungry for them. We have never had a child. And I love little children."

Melissa, worn out, body and nerve and mind, gave a thankful assent. And Mrs. Von Lierd threw herself into the task of coaxing back the roses to the baby's pallid cheeks.

Both the sick and the well baby promptly adopted her for a friend. She brought them picture books, healthful candy, fruit and flowers—little things which the mother could not object to taking. And when the doctor allowed it the children and their mother rode proudly forth in their neighbor's limousine. The sick baby spoiled a bit with petting, esconced herself upon Mrs. Von Lierd's lap, and could not be coaxed therefrom by her mother. Mrs. Von Lierd snuggled the little flaxen head closer to her.

"I feel very rich," she said, "now that I'm allowed to hold her. "How often, oh, how often, I've watched her at the window and wanted to."

"And," confessed Melissa Owens, "how often I've looked over at your windows and envied the curtains and hangings. I've broken the tenth commandment to smithereens since you've been here. But no more! It's the safest of all the commandments with me now. I wouldn't envy a queen."

"I've given a few blows at that commandment myself," said Mrs. Von Lierd, "but now, since you'll share the babies, I believe I, too, can afford to leave it intact."

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Who had made the strange pond? That is what Spotty the Turtle wanted to know. That is what Billy Mink wanted to know. Little Joe Otter and Jerry Muskrat and Grandfather Frog wanted to know the same thing when they arrived. So did Ol' Mistah Buzzard looking down from the blue, blue sky. It was very strang; very strange indeed! Never had there been a pond in that part of the Green Forest before; not even in the days when Sister South Wind melted the snow so fast that the Laughing Brook ran over its banks and the Smiling Pool grew twice as large as it ought to be.

Of course some one had made it. Spotty the Turtle had known that as soon as he had seen the strange pond. All in a flash he had understood what that wall of logs and brush and mud across the Laughing Brook was for. It was to stop the water from running down the Laughing Brook. And of course if the water couldn't keep on running and laughing on its way to the Smiling Pool it would just stand still and grow and grow into a pond. Of course! There was nothing else for it to do. Spotty felt very proud when he had thought that out all himself.

"This wall we are sitting on has made the pond," said Spotty the Turtle after a long time, in which no one had spoken.

"You don't say so!" said Billy Mink. "How ever, ever did you guess it? Are you sure, quite sure that the pond didn't make the wall?"

Spotty knew that Billy Mink was making fun of him, but he is too good natured to lose his temper over a little think like that. He tried to think of something smart to say in reply, but Spotty is a slow thinker as well as a slow walker, and before he could think of anything Billy was talking once more.

"This wall is what Farmer Brown's boy calls a dam," said Billy Mink, who is a great traveller. "Dams are usually built to keep water from running where it isn't wanted, or to make it go where it is wanted. Now, what I want to know is who under the sun wants a pond way back here in the Green Forest, and what is it for? Who do you think built this dam, Grandfather Frog?"

Grandfather Frog shook his head. His big goggly eyes seemed more goggly than ever as he stared at the new pond in the Green Forest.

"I don't know," said Grandfather Frog. "I don't know what to think."

"Why, it must be Farmer Brown's boy or Farmer Brown himself," said Jerry Muskrat.

"Of course," said Little Joe Otter, just as if he knew all about it.

Still Grandfather Frog shook his head as if he didn't agree. "I don't know," said Grandfather Frog. "I don't know. It doesn't look so to me."

Billy Mink ran along the top of the dam and down the back side. He looked it all over with those sharp little eyes of his.

"Grandfather Frog is right," said he, when he came back. "It doesn't look like the work of Farmer Brown or Farmer Brown's boy. But if they didn't do it who did? Who could have done it?"

"I don't know," said Grandfather Frog again in a dreamy sort of voice.

Spotty the Turtle looked at him and saw that Grandfather Frog's face wore its far away look. It always does when he tells a story of the days when the world was young. "I don't know," he repeated, "but it looks to me very much like the work of ——." Grandfather Frog stopped short off and turned to Jerry Muskrat. "Jerry Muskrat," said he, so sharply that Jerry nearly lost his balance in his surprise, "has your big cousin come down from the north?"

WHY YOU SHOULD GET A KODAK

Because Kodaking is decidedly the most popular and universal amusement in the world. Years ago Kodaking was a fad and the owner of a Kodak was called a "Kodak fiend." Nowadays everybody Kodaks. A Kodak is a positive necessity to round out any kind of pleasure. Picnics, outings, vacations, etc., are comparatively dull without a Kodak. Kodak pictures (snap-shots) are a permanent record of the most enjoyable moments in your life—the best possible argument in favor of a Kodak. Then they are easy to operate; a mere child can handle one successfully. The price, well, that should be the least of your troubles when you can get a practical little Brownie for $1., $2, $3, $4 and up. Larger Kodaks $5 up to $65. Send for catalog and new finishing price list.

CONTEMPT CASE BROUGHT TO END BY APOLOGIES

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 30.—The agreement of Solicitor General Palmer to withdraw the contempt proceedings against Leo Lowenherz, president of the Bee Hive drygoods concern, prominent in business circles and former head of the board of trade, brought the case to an abrupt ending late on Thursday afternoon, when it was stated that Lowenherz made due apologies to the court, and promptly answered all questions propounded to him in the grand jury room.

Lowenherz was a member of the grand jury. When the case of H. M. Mooty, former bookeeper for the Bee Hive came up, he was excused, and immediately placed on the stand and questioned in regard to the reported shortage and settlement between himself and Mooty. The sudden change in proceedings took the witness so by surprise that he couldn't answer one word and flatly refused to do so.

Hall, of Moultrie, Ga., unanimously was elected president of the Georgia Retail Hardware association, at the closing session of the convention in Taft hall Friday morning, and Savannah was chosen as the next meeting place, over Americus, whose delegates also put in a bid for the association that represents the leading hardware interests of the state.

Other officers elected for the ensuing year were: J. H. Harris, of Carrollton, first vice president; P. S. Twittie, of Dublin, second vice president and J. L. Moore, of Madison, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Moore was the only officer re-elected.

The executive committee is composed of W. W. Robinson, of Dublin; E. D. Jarman, of Baxley, and C. B. Thomas, of Griffin. Delegates to the national convention are J. R. Hall, R. W. Hatcher, of Milledgeville, and John L. Moore.

The session opened with an address by Samuel D. Jones, of Atlanta, after which reports of the several committees were heard. Several business matters were dispensed with and the convention adjourned sine die shortly after noon.

Special cars were waiting for the delegates at the auditorium-armory and they were taken to the Piedmont Driving club for a luncheon. Later they attended the baseball game at Ponce de Leon park.

The new president, Mr. Hall, was the first vice president of the organization during the past year, and is equipped well to assume the duties of the presiding officer. In Mr. Twitty and Mr. Harris, his lieutenants, he has two officers who have the welfare of the association at heart and who will assist him ably in the year's work.

Destruction of the "Patent Monoply"

Supreme Court of the U. S. Gave Decision This Week, Georgia Upheld Same Law 12 Years Ago.

WASHINGTON, May 26th—The so-called "Patent Monopoly" which threatens to prevent cut rates by retailers in all patented articles on the market, was destroyed today by the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. The court held that the owners of patents are not given the right by law to control the prices at which retailers must sell to the consumers.

THIS same law was upheld in the state of Georgia about twelve years ago, when Jacobs' Pharmacy took the question into court and was upheld in its right to cut prices. At that time we stood alone in our fight for fair prices to the public, as both retail and wholesale druggists were against us. But the fight was a good one, and as always, the RIGHT side must win. Today we are glad to see the decision upheld, not only in our own state, but in the Supreme Court of the United States.

What we do, we do well. Cut prices was but one detail toward the better drug stores of today. A square deal to the public has been our policy. Honest goods of pure quality, with the privilege of returning anything unsatisfactory for a refund of money; a stock of drugs and medicines recognized to be probably the most complete in the United States; the best pharmaceutical and prescription skill obtainable, with a laboratory and every modern scientific apparatus to facilitate and safeguard the work; and ALWAYS, Fair Prices.

Double Header at Ponce de Leon is Set For Saturday

Ride the Wire When Speed Is Ninety Miles

Wire Will Be Placed by Saturday and Then Motorcycle Stars Can Race at Their Fastest Speed on Track

Real practice work on the Atlanta motordrome will begin Saturday afternoon. Owing to the fact that the "ninety degree track," the part at the extreme top, was not put up until yesterday, none of the riders have felt like letting out very fast. If they had and had lost control they would have gone over the top and straight to glory. When the vertical section is in place they can hit it up as hard as they want to and when they get going the limit they will get on the ninety degree stuff and stick there, even if they go a hundred and ten miles an hour, which they will not.

The "ninety degree section" was put in place yesterday afternoon. Owing to this fact no riding at all was done and the drivers contented themselves with loafing around the paddock or with tinkering with the machines. Friday morning the upper portion of the track was painted and it will be all right by Saturday morning.

By beginning work Friday the riders will have six days to tune up their machines. Ordinarily this is more than is necessary, but almost all the machines in use at the track now are brand new and it is necessary to get them in trim by a lot of riding. This works the stiffness out and teaches the riders the best way to get all the speed out of them.

The final plans for next Friday night's racing will soon be made. It is planned now to have two races, to be run in heats. Three riders will take part in each preliminary heat. In the first race there will be five mile heats, one to qualify in the ordinary heats and two in the fastest heat. This will put four men in the final, which will be at three miles.

The second event will be decided with two-mile heats, one to qualify in each heat except the fastest, from which two will qualify. The final in the second event will be at five miles and four riders will take part in it.

This will give eight heats, which will take up about all the available time. All races will be with flying start, which is the only way races with fast speed machines can be run. For the matter of getting them started is a puzzle.

A "SNATCH MACHINE."

In starting the racing motorcycles a "snatch machine" will be used. This is an ordinary road motorcycle equipped with a "drag line" or "tow rope" which hangs off behind. A rider grabs one end of the drag line, which is attached to the back of the snatch machine, and away they go. When the snatch machine gets going at thirty-five or forty miles an hour the racing machine begins sparking and shoots by the snatch machine, which then returns to the paddock for another.

As soon as a man is started by the snatch machine he hits up speed and crawls to the top of the track. Then another one is started down on the flat and up he goes for the top. Finally, after they are all popping and zipping around the track, they gradually line up, each man taking his position (which is drawn for) above and alongside the "pole horse." As soon as they are pretty well bunched the starter fires his gun and drops the flag. The gun is for the benefit of the spectators, because the contestants are making so much noise they couldn't hear a thirteen-inch gun explode. The flag gives the word and they are off for the race.

When they are started it is pretty work to the finish. The scorers must be particularly alert for the machines go hurling around at intervals of ten and eleven seconds—just about the time it takes a fast athlete to run a hundred yards—and only wide-awake men can keep up with the happenings. Owing to the fact that the machines are of virtually equal power and ridden by riders of equal skill the finishes are likely to be "tight" and it takes the closest attention by the officials sometimes to decide the winner. Except in cases of spills the machines seldom get strung out as they do so often in bicycle, automobile and horse races. In motorcycle racing there is a thrilling start, they are away in a flash, a gruelling

ATLANTA-BIRMINGHAM IN ATTENDANCE FRAY

Atlanta Given Flag Raising Date in Baronville and Barons Get Attendance Date in Atlanta

Atlanta and Birmingham waged a most heated battle for the Southern league attendance trophy, and Atlanta came out the winner.

The next number on the program will be a battle between these same two towns to see which can turn out the larger attendance during two big days in June. The first will occur June 9, when Birmingham raises the 1912 pennant in Birmingham with the Atlanta club as the opposition. Then on June 19 at Ponce de Leon park President Kavanaugh will present the attendance trophy to Atlanta and the Birmingham club will be the opposition. Both are big dates and the moguls in each city are anxious to get credit for the larger attendance.

There is no denying the fact that Atlanta baseball fans are more loyal than those in Birmingham, and it looks as if Atlanta has another honor coming this way. We won the attendance trophy from the Slagpile fans under the most trying conditions and with a good day the next battle should come this way by a wide margin. In fact, it should not even be close.

At the flag raising in Birmingham the fans will naturally turn out in large numbers as the raising of the 1912 flag brings up pleasant memories and memories which do not now appear likely to be repeated this season. Flag raising day in any city is a big event and with the added boosting the game is getting over in Birmingham, the crowd just can't help from being a corker.

In Atlanta just any old day that represents loyalty to the town is a big day. It doesn't have to be flag-raising day, trophy day or any other special day, the fact that it is against any other city being sufficient to get the fans to turn out in large numbers. And with the added attraction of trophy day the crowd will be unusually large.

President Kavanaugh, who offered the trophy won by the Cracker fans, will be on hand to make the presentation. In presenting the cup to the local association he will doubtless make a short talk in the interest of baseball.

ERRORS AND HITS THAT WON GAMES

Frank Baker, the world series hero, was again the hero of a big battle yesterday. With the score 5 to 4 against the Athletics, he put the ball over the fence and tied the score in the seventh. Then in the eighth with two down, he doubled and scored on a single by Mc-Innis, winning the game for the Athletics by the score of 5 to 6. It was exciting all the way through, there being something doing every minute of the time. New York played good ball, but the Athletics were going good. The hitting on both sides was lively, McInnis getting four hits out of five times up, while Backenbaugh, New York's shortstop, hit the ball for three safeties in as many times up.

Cleveland was the victor over the St. Louis team yesterday by the score of 6 to 3, this being Falkenberg's ninth straight victory. However, he was very wild and twice filled the bases with two men out and then Williams, of St. Louis, would strike out. The St. Louis team were due to lose, however. Their train was late and they were compelled to go on the field hungry, and there are very few ball teams that can put up a good article of baseball on an empty stomach, Jackson and Ryan both got three hits out of four times up.

President Wilson yesterday saw the home team give the champions a hard drubbing by defeating them by the score of 5 to 2. Washington scored enough in the third inning to defeat the champs. Speaker made two errors and this combined with three singles off O'Brien gave the Senators the game.

It took New York fourteen innings to put the screws to the Philadelphia team yesterday. The final score was 7 to 6 in favor of the Giants, with Crandall, Marquard and Tesreau on the mound for the champs. The game was exceedingly exciting, New York tying up the score in the eighth and finally winning in the fourteenth.

Cobb, the great, was the indirect cause of Detroit getting defeated yesterday by the Chicago team by the score of 3 to 2 in ten innings. In the ninth, with the score tied, Easterly, batting for Berger, drew a free pass and reached third on a single by Lord. Cobb fumbled the ball and allowed the man to reach third. Easterly scored on a wild pitch, winning the game.

In a game that was marked by the country style of ball played, Cincinnati yesterday defeated the boys from Missouri by the town ball score of 13 to 10. There were seven pitchers used during the game and all of them were wild and hit freely. Cincinnati got seventeen hits and St. Louis took thirteen for their share. Thirty hits in one game is going some.

Pittsburg won their game yesterday in truly whirlwind style. With the score two runs against them in the ninth, Hyatt knocked the ball over the fence and this scored two runs, tying the count, and then another brace of hits and an error gave the Wagnerites the game, 5 to 4. Hyatt's hit was the longest that has ever been seen on Forbes field. The hitting on both sides was light, Pittsburg getting ten to Chicago's eight.

COBB'S WORK

Ty Cobb and his average took a slight drop Thursday, he getting only one hit out of three times at the bat. It was his off day, as he stole no bases and scored no runs, besides fumbling the ball, allowing a man to steal home on a wild pitch a minute later. The Georgia Peach, however, has to have an off day like the same as other human beings and the slump was but the calm before the storm.

His average so far this year, including Thursday's game, is:

	G.	AB.	R.	H.	Pct.
Cobb	25	83	13	40	.482

U. S. Team Practices

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., May 30.—The American team of poloists who will defend the international cup on June 10, played another fast and well contested game today at Westbury. The field was heavy but the players had an abundance of practice.

Moreland Avenue Wins

The Moreland avenue baseball team beat the Inman Park team two yesterday. The first game was won by the score of 9 to 6, while the second game was won by the score of 6 to 5.

DOUBLE BILL ON SATURDAY

One Game Friday With Dent Opposing C. Brown—Donahue to Do Catching

The double-header scheduled for Friday between Atlanta and Montgomery has been postponed until Saturday, the one game taking place today with two on Saturday. Permission from President Kavanaugh and the agreement between Managers Smith and Dobbs made the shift possible, it being figured that the fans would prefer the double bill to come on Saturday.

In the game Friday Dent and Chapman will most likely be the Atlanta battery with Curly Brown and Pat Donahue working for the visitors. With the Dobbers one game to the good, Manager Dobbs will make a most strenuous effort to take the second battle so as to assure him of at least an even break and the chances of three or maybe four wins.

The Montgomery club is now hustling overtime to get up in the running, and Dobbs is handing out his very, best work in an effort to make Atlanta the goat. While the Dobbers did not play any spectacular ball on Thursday, the team is capable of good work and maybe a real fight is set for Friday.

The first game of Saturday's double-header will be staged at 2:15, this giving plenty of time to stage two nine-inning games without any especial rush. It is likely that Gilbert Price, who has returned to the fold, will work both games for the Crackers and if there is any pitcher in the league who can turn the iron man trick it is this lad.

Tennis Champs Play

NEW YORK, May 30.—The International Lawn Tennis teams today practiced at the West Chester Country club. S. N. Doust and Horace Rice, the Australians, paired against T. R. Pell and C. E. Haggett, the latter the English professional. The Australians lost two out of three sets. Haggett took on M. E. McLoughlin at singles and the professional won.

Scratch Hits Big Feature; Error Helped

Brady and Case Both Pounded Hard—Only One Extra Base Hit in the Twenty-Five—Very Few Fast Plays

With errors bobbing up every few minutes and the batters more than slaughtering the offerings of both Brady and Case, the opening game between Atlanta and Montgomery Thursday afternoon was a most weird exhibition. The final count was 7 to 4 in favor of Montgomery, this count largely being due to the fact that Atlanta played the rottenest ball.

Every club has an off day, but it is seldom that contesting teams will select the same day to play their ragged ball. However, this was the case Thursday. Montgomery was off and Atlanta was decidedly off. The combination resulted in a most awful exhibition.

The redeeming feature of play was the batting of Brady and Jantzen. The Atlanta flinger secured four hits in as many times at bat, while Jantzen rapped out four singles in the five trips up. Bailey, Long, Wares, Manning and Sloan added two each, while most all were credited with as many as one.

There were more scratch hits than in any other one game witnessed here in many a day. Most everything was one that was too hot for the infield, too slow to be fielded or a measly pop up or force hunt which happened to roll just where the field was not protected. Knaupp with a three-sacker rapped out the only extra base drive of the game and there were twenty-five hits during the fracas.

Kutina made a neat play on Manning's throw of Alperman's hot grounder in the first. The baseman had to jump off the bag and catch the ball, but as he came to earth he put the ball on Whitey.

Wallace Smith made a most excellent catch of Sloan's foul to the bleacher fence in the first. The ball was almost against the stand when Wallace picked it off.

Risland and Agler played jam-up ball in the sixth in pulling a fast double play. Every second counted and it was by the narrowest of margins that the second out was made.

In the eighth Brady was in hot water and with two on the bags and one down he walked Gribbens with the idea that a double play could be made on Case. As it was Case fanned and Walker then hit a slow one to short which was just too slow to handle and the fireworks started, two runners being scored before the side could be retired and both resulted from fluke hits.

SOMEWHERE OUT—
(Our annual War sons on the crimson edge of June.)

Somewhere out from the toil and grind—
Somewhere out where the road is kind—
Somewhere out where green trails wait
For weary feet through the city's gate;
From the snarl and tangle in marts of trade
To the peace of God in the open shade—
Through the purple dusk—through the silver due—
Where the rose sweet dreams of the years come true.

Somewhere out—and we who drive
The heart and soul through the city's hive—
Where life is bound in the city walls
Have little care where the Ree Road calls—
Or little choice where the Trail may wait
So that it leads from the city's gate—
To the seagirt east or the northern snows,
To the sunlit west or the southern rose.

Somewhere out from the grip of greed—
Somewhere out as the road may lead—
Or where the winds of the world may drift
As the burdens fall and the shadows lift—
Wherever the peace of God may wait
And love shall come to the twilight gate—
Through the purple dusk—through the silver dew,
Where the rose—sweet dreams of the years come true.

If baseball and the fight game were operated over the same highway of class it would only be a question of a year or two until the next world's series championship was established at Broken Bow, Neb., or Happy Hollow, Tenn.

QUITE—

"What is Ty Cobb batting now? some fanatic recently asked one of the Yank pitchers.

"I don't know," was the reply, "but it's enough."

In the meanwhile, where are those "three or our firstclass new pitchers" that our old Siberian chum, C. Webb, was going to dig up? Has he lost his shovel or was the startling discovery made that "three or four firstclass pitchers" would cost him $10 or $12 in open market?

If the Athletics can lead the league with Frank Baker batting .250 you have your own guess as to where they will be when J. Franklin resumes his pristine pomp and glides back into his well established habit.

The Washington club through Monday has won nineteen games, and out of this number eleven belonged to Johnson. What a great little ball club Jimmy Archer, Walter Johnson and Ty Cobb would make. Any other additions would only be surplus baggage, badly in the way.

The fact, as stated by Mr. Longfellow first that "it is not always May" is no cheering news to certain ball clubs we might mention. They are hitting the chutes now and mid-season form is still a full month away when the regular slump is due.

Our idea of nothing to pay a heavy fine for is the privilege of managing the St. Louis Browns. Still, it takes all sorts of people to compile the batting order of this well known universe and different people esteem different things.

Irregardless of the result of the McCarthy-Pelky battle it should be a crime to let any of these White Hopes now on deck into the ring. Most of them are lucky when they don't draw a broken neck attempting to climb over the ropes.

Colleges Meet On the Track

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 30.—The Harvard stadium today was a crucible of competition, in which the best of the college athletes of the country met in a series of preliminary tests to determine those most fitted to strive for final honors in the culminating events of tomorrow.

For this, the thirty-eighth annual championship track and field meeting of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America, more than 200 student athletes had entered. In the fight for points, the attention of the experts centered principally upon four colleges out of the twenty-five represented, Pennsylvania, Cornell, California and Dartmouth, with incidental interest in the general performances of the men from Michigan, Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Columbia.

The number and the identity of the men from such of these colleges who qualify or the semi-finals and finals gives a basis for reckoning the championship possibilities of the various teams. Indications today were that Pennsylvania and Cornell would lead in the scramble for points, but either California or Dartmouth was regarded as having a chance to win.

Journal Romps

The Atlanta Journal boys outclassed East Point in one of the most ragged games of the season, by the score of 21 to 4. Mullins was in fine trim and had the East Point boys eating out of his hand at all times, keeping them scoreless for six innings when he slowed up. The other feature of the game was the catching and hitting of Rutherford, getting two three-baggers, one two-bagger and a single with men on base each time he hit. Osborne and Clowers featured in the field, making some stops that looked impossible.

The Atlanta Journal wishes to arrange games with some fast team in or around the city. For games call Main 2000 and ask for W. Simmons.

Dillon Easily Downed Klaus

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—Jack Dillon, of Indianapolis, out boxed Frank Klaus, of Pittsburg, in a ten-round bout here last night. Klaus did not land over a dozen blows that counted.

Klaus did not put up the fight expected. Several times he hung in the clinches and seemed to be waiting for his seconds to signal him what to do next. After the first five rounds Dillon was the aggressor most all of the time.

Both fighters appeared to be wary and the first five rounds were tame.

The sixth round and all the remainder were Dillon's. Klaus tried out his famous chop blow in the sixth but could not make it work.

In the ninth and tenth rounds, Dillon tried to end the bout, but could not get in a knockout blow.

Pennsy Crew Is Selected

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Selection of the University of Pennsylvania varsity four, which will compete in the intercollegiate races at Poughkeepsie next month, was announced by Coach Ward today. The crew will row as follows:

Bow, Watrous; No. 2, Marcy; No. 3, Littleton; stroke, Bowns. Griffin was chosen as substitute. These men will join the varsity and freshmen eights at the training house on the Delaware, where the crews will train until June 8, when they leave for the scene of the races on the Hudson.

Jimmie Perry Knocked Out

PITTSBURG, May 30.—Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, knocked out Jimmy Perry, of Pittsburg, in the second round of a six-round bout here last night. In the second round Gibbons dropped Perry for the count of nine with a hard right to the jaw. Gibbons put Perry down again for a count of six and then put a left hook to the jaw and Perry went down and out.

METROPOLITAN FOR FRIDAY

NEW YORK, May 30.—With fourteen entries, comprising the class of the American thoroughbred field of today the ninth running of the Metropolitan handicap will be staged at Belmont park, Long island, Friday afternoon. Established in 1903, this turf classic was run annually until 1910, when the abandoning of racing in New York state caused the event to be dropped. During the eight years it continued the race was one of the features of the American turf season, attracting the entries of the best and fastest horses in training. The winners follow:

In 1903, H. P. Whitney's Gun Fire; 1904, H. B. Duryea's Irish Lad; 1905, dead heat between James R. Keene's Sysonby and L. Richard's Race King; 1906, J. A. Drake's Grapple; 1907, J. H. McCormick's Glorifier; 1908, B. Schreiber's Jack Atkin; 1909, E. C. Hildreth's King James; 1910, Oneck Stables' Fashion Plate.

The record of 1 37 4-5 for the mile is held by Fashion Plate, and the record value was $11,080, won by Gun Fire in initial event.

Poultry on the Farm

THE dairy work that is being done in Georgia is having its effect, and a few men are responsible or this work. The same should be looked after with the poultry interest as it could be done with so much less capital and so many more people could be interested. There is a way by which this work can be gotten at profitably and bring revenue to thousands of people, and the sooner the state authorities take up this work the quicker will our country prosper from the effects of it. We lack education and teaching on these lines and if would bring about in a short time wonderful results that would help the average farmer as much if not more than any money or time or like amount that could be invested. Just so long as we need these poultry products so badly for food we can expect it to be a profitable industry, and while it looks small and insignificant it means millions of dollars to any state that will look after it and spend some money in helping others develop it. With the poultry industry and the dairy industry brought to it's highest stage of perfection in the south it would mean the circulation of millions of dollars kept at home that is now going abroad.

Poultry work on the farm is a part of any farmer's occupation, and as there is so much time that can be converted to this work during rainy days and bad weather many would indulge in it if they were encouraged the least bit or know how to start or undertake it, and it is one item connected with southern farming that is being overlooked. A trip through most of the New England and Western states will convince any one of how much they are losing from not paying attention to this line of work in the south. You will find on the average farm throughout most of these states splendid poultry buildings and splendid flocks of chickens properly cared for. Most of these people appreciate their poultry and realize how much value they are to them and how many hundreds of dollars it brought to their door every year by paying attention to their fowls. It is a part of their farming operations and it should be a part of ours.

The few farmers who are paying attention to this work in the south are finding it very profitable and most of them are out of debt, and having a revenue from their poultry every week in the year that enables them to save a majority of their cotton crop and have it clear. In Cobb county and in several other counties in the state there are many farmers who appreciate what their poultry has done for them and it is gradually growing in Georgia, but not half so fast as it should. With the many advantages of feed in now to hours, just what is thoroughbred poultry at a reasonable price and with the chances we have to grow an abundance of feed there is no excuse for this work being neglected any further, and how easy it is for the members of a family to do this work and earn something where otherwise their time would not be converted or made profitable. It is certainly gratifying to see on Saturdays the farmers marketing eggs in the little towns now that was never thought of ten or fifteen years ago, and the little work and small expense that has already been spent on this industry is having its effect, but we are not spending enough or paying enough attention to it. It is the duty of every merchant and many others in the little towns to encourage and lend a helping hand in every way possible they can to the farmers to encourage them to raise more poultry. It not only helps the city people but it helps the farmers as well. It would be a great thing for this country if on every well regulated farm could be found a flock of three to five hundred laying hens and the effects could soon be seen in every family who kept them.

Yours very truly,

Lewis Jones

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

Atlanta, Ga.

I recently purchased some White Leghorns and have decided to set some eggs. I want to do not in the least understand raising small chicks from the time they are hatched up. I would greatly appreciate it if you will give me the full detail on raising them. How should the first two days and give them only the small chick scratch feed that is sold by all seed dealers and poultry supply houses. After three days ten days to two weeks old they should be gradually changed to other feeds, and they should also have plenty green food and plenty fresh water. Just so they are kept comfortable and clean and not overfed, you will have no trouble in raising them.

Little chicks should be kept off the ground if raised artificially until after they are feathered, but if raised with hens, you can keep the hen confined and let the little chicks have a free range after they are ten days old.

If you will visit several successful poultry plants you can learn in a short time just how to care for your chicks.

QUESTION.

Atlanta, Ga.

Please tell me thorugh The Journal the best methods in feed and care to attain size in late hatched chicks. Have only a back lot or garden, but will spare no expense or pains to get them up to the standard weight.

This advice at this season will profit many others, so please be exhaustive in it.

J. H. H.

ANSWER.

The best way to attain size in late hatched chickens is to feed bountifully on boiled oats and plenty of green food. This will have a tendency to develop bone and muscle and give them plenty of size. They should also be made to take lots of exercise, which you can do by feeding the grain feed in a deep scratch bed and make them work for it, and by spading up the ground and planting oats and wheat, this will also make them scratch and look for the tender sprouts. If fed too much corn or concentrated food, they will have a tendency to take on fat too fast and will not build a frame that they would by feeding plenty green food and plenty of oats.

You will also have to watch closely and keep them free from insects. Keep their roosting quarter spic and span every two weeks with Agasco spray, which will keep them down.

WE HAVE for trade for Atlanta property a 400-acre farm on Bartow county, two miles from Kingston. This farm fronts on the W. & A. road and is well improved, and is a fine cotton and grain farm. It has a beautiful 10-room colonial house that cost something like $7,500 or more to build it. Has barn and tenant houses. Outside of this being one of the best farms in that section, it is full of mine rock, consisting of cement rock in a large quantity. It has been tested and is of the very best quality of cement. Has bauxite, pyrites, fine brown iron ore and manganese iron ore. This being right on the railroad makes it a very valuable piece of property. We have a party now wanting to lease this on a royalty of 65 cents a ton for bauxite and 15 cents for the cement and iron ore. The party that owns this is unable to look after it and will exchange it for some Atlanta property. If you are interested in this proposition, call at our o $7,000 or more to build it. Has barn and te it over.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Probable That Work Will Be Started on Building for Commission Houses at Central Avenue Shortly, the Building to Cost Between $60,000 and $80,000—Several New Transfers Recorded—Washington Street Sale and Resale

It is probable that work will be started shortly on the building which will house about sixteen South Broad street commission houses north of Hunter street and between Central avenue and Washington street.

At the Georgia railroad offices it was said Thursday that it couldn't be stated exactly when the work will be started, but it was thought that it would be shortly. President Scott, of the road, will be in Atlanta Friday and may have some developments to announce.

The building will cost between $60,000 and $80,000 and will be about 400 feet long. The commission houses have signed the leases and the ground has been cleared of old buildings and the excavation made.

TRANSFERS RECORDED.

Quite a large amount of new business is going to record from day to day.

Probably an average of ten bonds for title are recorded a day. As a good many sales are not recorded, it follows that a considerable amount of real estate business of medium-sized considerations is being done.

One agent remarked that a good many owners are taking stock of what they have on hand and are getting it in shape to put on the market later on.

WASHINGTON STREET SALE.

One sale that went to record on Thursday was of a Washington street residence, of which there was a re-sale also.

Mrs. Carrie Mayer sold to E. W. Bingham property on the west side of the street, 202 feet south of Bass street, the lot being 50x190, for $8,125.

Mr. Bingham has resold the property to D. H. Strauss for a consideration that does not appear in the record.

Schmidt Star Though Loser

Young American Won Greatest Respect of Britishers by His Play

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 30.—Though defeated in the sixth round of the amateur golf championship by Harold H. Hilton, the English crack of the Royal Liverpool Golf club, W. Heinrich Schmidt, the young player of Worcester, Mass., by his plucky fight, in the estimation of the British golfers, established his right to rank with "Chick" Evans and Fred Herreshoff as among the greatest young golfers America has produced.

For eighteen holes Schmidt made the Englishman fight every inch of the way. Schmidt had bad luck. Time and again he lipped the hole with long putts.

The men were tied on the eighteenth and an extra hole had to be played, Hilton out-drove Schmidt off the tee but the Massachusetts lad made up on his second. Hilton, however, holed a long putt and won the hole in three against Schmidt's four.

A gallery of 2,000 followed the match but did not disturb in the least the American. He was as cool as a veteran. He took his defeat in a sportsmanlike fashion.

The brilliant play of W. Heinrich Schmidt, the Worcester, Mass., golfer, who succeeded in forcing H. E. Hilton into an extra hole match before admitting defeat in the sixth round of the British golf championship, is taken as a token among American golfers that a new star has arisen in the game. His ability to give the great Hilton such a severe test on a strange course and with little preliminary practice, indicates that he has the qualifications needed for flights in the highest golf rankings.

The strength and technique of Schmidt's game are the result of a short but brilliant career on the links. Last year he won the Massachusetts association championship. In the amateur championship played at Wheaton, Ill., he reached the third round and it required no less a player than Charles Evans, Jr., to eliminate him.

In the United States Golf association list he is ranked in the third class. Schmidt is holder of the Maplewood Golf club course record of 69 for 18 holes.

IS ALABAMA THE CHAMP?

Atlanta, May 30, 1913.

To the Sporting Editor, Atlanta Journal: Relative to the baseball championship in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association, I call your attention to the University of Alabama's record.

She has won from the following teams: Marion Military institute, Birmingham college, Columbus Cotton States league, Tulane, Mississippi A. and M, Mercer, Tech, Cumberland, Southwestern of Texas. They have lost but two college games, to the University of Georgia and Georgia lost to Tech.

They are supposed to have played Vanderbilt on Monday and Tuesday. I have not seen the result of these games. If she won both of these games, I submit that she is in a class all to herself.

Eight of the above games were shutouts, one was a no-hit game, two were one-hit games.

Weatherly, president of the Bell-Weatherly Mercantile company and a director last year in the Southeastern league, is of the opinion that the class of ball being staged in the Georgia-Alabama league at present is superior to that of the Southeastern at this time last year. Young a Real Phenom

ANNISTON, Ala., May 30.—Gip Young, the Anniston twirler who is believed to have pitched a no-hit game here Tuesday afternoon, is regarded as one of the phenoms of the Georgia-Alabama league. He has not lost a game this year and seldom yields more than five hits in a game. He is a Calhoun county boy and seems to be in a fair way to go higher. Two other Anniston boys who will go up are the Henry twins, who are already being watched by the big league scouts. They are known as "Me and My Brother" and "Pete and Repeat" to the Anniston fans. Pete bats right-handed and Repeat left-handed, the only way they can be told apart.

Donaldson Out of Game

ANNISTON, Ala., May 30.—Earl Donaldson, the Rome, Ga., lad who has been starring for Anniston at short and leading off at the bat, will be out of the game for several days on account of a cut received while practicing Wednesday afternoon. His place at short will be taken by Stephenson, the Pred pitcher, who has been re-signed by Hannon. Hannon will act as field captain during Donaldson's absence. Second Baseman Boykin, of Gadsden, who played with Stephenson on the Pred team, missed his train while en route to Talladega Thursday from Gadsden and had to remain over in Anniston. He is a son of the president of the league and very popular here.

To Burn $14,000 in Notes at Baptist Tabernacle Sunday

Cancelled notes for $14,000 will be burned on the rostrum of the Baptist Tabernacle church next Sunday night.

The notes represent the full payment on the beautiful new organ which the church bought recently and which will be dedicated formally on Sunday night. The last payment of $3,000 has just been donated to the church by Andrew Carnegie, and now the monster instrument hasn't a single note tied to it, save musical notes.

On the night of the dedication the congregation of the Trinity Methodist church will be dismissed and will attend the Tabernacle services in a body. The Trinity organist, Charles Sheldon, who helped the Tabernacle people very much in selecting the new organ and suggesting the stops for it, will play it Sunday night.

The Trinity choir will join with the Tabernacle chorus in the musical program. The chorus is made up of eighty-five voices, and is directed by A. C. Boatman.

The speakers of the evening will be "Bob" Broyles and W. C. Mansfield. Wi... H. A. Ethridge presiding.
